

Vitamin Ads on TV Harmful to Children

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A consumer group that says more and more children are being poisoned by overdoses of vitamins has asked the government to ban vitamin advertisements from children's TV programs.

In a petition received by the Federal Trade Commission Wednesday, Action for Children's Television also asked the government to go to court to halt one particular ad campaign featuring a cartoon character named "Spider-Man."

The Boston-based group asked the FTC to get a temporary court order stopping a $1 million ad campaign by Hudson Pharmaceutical Corp. for "Spider-Man" vitamins.

It said the commercials, begun on TV in the New York area and appearing in print elsewhere in the country, encourage children to emulate the cartoon character and create a "completely distorted notion of the medicinal contents of the bottle."

The president of Hudson Pharmaceutical told UPI he declined the allegations "incredulous" and "erroneous." He declined further comment until he had seen the ACT petition.

"Vitamin supplements are not candy," the petition said. "They are sufficiently toxic, if taken in large doses, to put a child into a coma."

The group said government figures show that vitamin overdose is the nation's No. 2 medical problem involving children under 5 accidentally eating things they shouldn't — second only to aspirin.

It quoted the National Clearing House for Poison Control Centers as saying "vitamin ingestion poison cases have shown an increased trend over the past four years."

In 1971 ACT asked the government to ban all drug ads on children's programs. That resulted in voluntary withdrawal of such ads by three big companies — Miles Laboratories, Bristol Myers and Hoffman LaRoche. And the National Association of Broadcasters revised its voluntary code to stop subscribing stations from advertising vitamins to children.

But ACT said only 60 per cent of the nation's 700 TV stations adhere to the NAB code and the Spider-Man ads indicate show industry self-regulation is not enough, so a formal rule from the FTC is needed to protect young viewers.

ACT is a national nonprofit organization which has been involved for several years in challenging both the program and commercial content of TV fare.

In a related development, two doctors say television advertisements promoting the use of over-the-counter sleep aids and tranquilizers are contributing to the drug abuse problem among youngsters.

Drs. Anthony Kales of the Hershey Medical Center and David Greenblatt of the Massachusetts General Hospital told a Senate monopoly subcommittee Wednesday the heavily advertised nonprescription drugs are ineffective in their recommended dosages, and higher doses may cause dangerous side effects.

But even more important, they said, is the impression left by the drug advertisements that it is "perfectly appropriate" to turn to products such as Somnol or Compoz to handle a slight case of the nerves or the occasional insomnia most persons encounter.

"My own feeling is even if these drugs were effective, they should not be on the market," Kales said. "We should not medicate ourselves for a minimal degree of nervousness or a minimal degree of sleeplessness."

He said children and adolescents are particularly susceptible to the advertisements, especially when their own family members use medication for minor difficulties.

"I believe that for youngsters it is a very small step to extend this concept of immediate self medication of non-prescription drugs to immediate mood alteration with drugs of abuse," Kales said. "My feeling is that the impact of this advertising ... goes beyond just encouraging the use of nonprescription drugs. Perhaps all such advertising would be best left off the tube."

UPI DATELINE Waiting for Jesus

MENA, Ark. (UPI) — A band of persons waiting for the return of Jesus prayed 45 minutes Wednesday, but did not try to stop authorities from removing six children from the rural home where the group has waited a month for the second coming of Christ.

Polk County Juvenile Court Judge J. B. Stevenson ordered the children removed because they allegedly were in violation of the state's compulsory school attendance law. Their names were not released but Stevenson said they ranged in age from 6 to 9.

About 25 persons have been keeping the vigil in the house.

"It seemed one of them had a vision Christ was coming on a certain date and after He didn't show up they decided to wait until He did because they knew it wouldn't be long," Stevenson said.

Pessimistic Americans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Americans have become so pessimistic over the economic situation that the nation seems to be heading for "its greatest crisis of confidence" since the Great Depression, pollster George Gallup reported today.

Irving Crespi, executive vice president of the Gallup Organization, told the congressional Joint Economic Committee a just completed survey shows a "significant decline" in the way Americans view the quality of their own lives and prospects for the future.

He said the survey, conducted for The New York Times, marked the first such pessimistic downswing since Gallup began testing the American mood in 1959.

Stamp Hike Suit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Eleven states have filed suit to block the Postal Service from increasing the cost of a first class stamp to 13 cents.

The suit filed Wednesday said the temporary rate increase scheduled for Dec. 28 would be "inflationary, unwarranted, discriminatory and unlawful under the Postal Reorganization Act." The legal action also seeks to prevent the planned increase from seven cents to 10 cents for post cards.

"The proposed increases in first class postal rates would result in preferential treatment for users of other classes of mail and therefore would be unlawful when imposed," the suit said.

Letters for Karen

DENVILLE, N.J. (UPI) — The letters are mostly religious and come from as far away as Europe, some urging doctors to pray for a miracle that would bring Karen Ann Quinlan out of her six-month long coma.

"Please, please don't let her die," wrote a woman from Yorktown Heights, N.Y. "God healed our daughter of cancer, polio and back surgery."

'Deer Has Odds On Its Side'

KINGSTON

The controversy surrounding deer hunting with bow and arrow — which has prompted criticism by the Ulster County SPCA and editorial comment by the Freeman — has aroused a strong response from the Federated Sportsmen's Clubs of Ulster County.

In a statement issued recently, Federation President Frederick G. Faerber III, and Joseph Juliano, chairman of the federation's archery committee, strongly discounted suggestions that deer get the worst of it from bow and arrow hunters.

"The elusive deer has the odds on his side in the duel between the archer and the deer," the two federation spokesmen commented. "One out of every 30 hunters is successful in taking a deer ... if 10 per cent of the animals that were not taken were wounded and half of these were to die of these inflicted wounds, this would account for approximately 150 deer. At least 150 deer are killed every day by automobiles in New York State."

They added: "Domesticated dogs running singly or in packs kill more deer annually than the total archery harvest throughout the entire state."

In response to an SPCA claim that today's method of bow and arrow hunting is antiquated, Faerber and Juliano stated, "If the Indians of over 100 years ago had present day archery equipment, we might be the ones on reservations today."

In its Oct. 14 editorial on the controversy — which suggested that bow and arrow hunting be outlawed — the Freeman quoted statistics provided by the SPCA which noted that 30,000 deer in Michigan died "slow and painful deaths" from poorly aimed arrows.

The two federation spokesmen termed these statistics "erroneous," and added, "We are shocked and surprised that the Daily Freeman would lower itself by propagandizing erroneous data. This was not a misprint, it was done with a specific purpose to mislead the public."

"As far as the SPCA is concerned," Faerber and Juliano concluded, "they should keep up the good work by continuing their practice of genocide and euthanasia for the benefit of the dogs and cats."

Campaign for Preservation

Members of Friends of Historic Kingston and students at Kingston High School participated in a rally in front of the old City Hall on Broadway Wednesday to voice their support for preservation of the abandoned municipal building. They urged a "yes" vote on Election Day on an advisory proposal for the city to spend up to $1 million, which could attract an additional $500,000 in state funds, to preserve the site as an historic landmark. They emphasized, however, that preservation of the building need not cost that much money. (Freeman photo)

Water Controversy Boils

By Hugh Reynolds

KINGSTON

Kingston's most celebrated "team" — Mayor Francis R. Koenig and Alderman-at-Large T. Robert Gallo — seems to have its signals crossed on the city's supplying of water for some 60 families in the Spring Lake area.

And Ulster Town Supervisor Carmine Sabino is caught in the middle.

On Wednesday Sabino announced that Spring Lake would be getting city water. "I now have a promise from the city of Kingston that the Spring Lake area will get water," Sabino declared in a front page Freeman article. "I know what they have gone through and I think some of them know how hard we've tried to work it out."

Confronted with Sabino's statement that there was some kind of agreement between the city and the town, Koenig was emphatic in his denials. "Not me," he said. "Never. I never told him that."

Koenig went on to insist that he had never had any meetings with Sabino on the subject of water for Spring Lake.

Sabino said that's true enough. His meeting — sometime in July — was with Gallo and two other city aldermen, Philip DeCicco (D-Ninth Ward) and Daniel Smith (D-11th Ward). The meeting was held at Sabino's request and in Sabino's office.

Sabino said that Gallo and his Council colleagues drew up a list of nine conditions whereby the city would be willing to sell water to the town for the Spring Lake area.

The conditions, as Sabino outlined it at a press conference this morning, would require an agreement between the city and the town. The city would bill the town for all water with the town billing the individual families. The town would pay for all water installation and fire hydrants. A special water-fire district would be created for the Spring Lake area.

The list of demands emphasized in several instances that the water would be for the Spring Lake area only and that even within the Spring Lake area no additional buildings would be included in the future without the express approval of the water board.

Sabino said the request was made on a "humanitarian basis" because 54 of the 59 families in the Spring Lake area are forced now to use polluted water. Whether or not the mayor of the water board had any knowledge of Gallo's dealings with the town of Ulster is not clear. Koenig said he has never discussed the matter with Sabino. Sabino says otherwise but agrees with Koenig's statement he has never met with the mayor on the subject.

Sabino has never formally presented his request for water for Spring Lake to the Kingston Water Board. Water Superintendent Edmund T. Cloonan says, "I've never met the man."

An article in the July 23, 1975 edition of the Freeman states that Sabino appeared before the board on July 3 to plead for Spring Lake water.

All parties now agree that the article was not accurate — Sabino was not there although the only explanation offered, by Sabino, for not responding to an erroneous report was that due to the sensitivity of the discussion between city and town officials it was felt to keep the entire matter confidential.

"I felt we would have gotten it," Sabino said. "I still feel very honestly that the city owes these people something. I feel they have a human obligation to sell them water. If they don't get it, I'm going to go higher."

'Lulu' Hike Ruled Illegal

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — State lawmakers violated the constitution when, in the early morning hours of a July day, they voted to increase "lulus" for members holding down so-called leadership posts, according to a State Supreme Court justice.

However, the legal hassle and the embarrassment that the controversial payments has caused state legislators is far from over, with an appeal to a higher court a certainty.

Justice Edward S. Conway declared the new and increased stipends for lawmakers illegal Wednesday in a suit brought by the Civil Service Employees Association, whose members were upset about the size of their own pay raises.

Conway ordered the state comptroller to recover approximately $71,000 already paid to lawmakers who received the special payments for holding down "leadership" posts, but that order would automatically be stayed with the filing of an appeal.

The suit was initiated by the CSEA, the state's largest public workers union, after the legislators approved a Supplemental Budget in the closing hours of the spring session which appropriated funds for the increased lulus.

That supplemental budget also contained funds for a one-time cash bonus of $250 for state workers in lieu of a raise.

Conway's order would not affect lulus paid prior to the last legislative session.

The bill for the lulus paid in addition to the regular pay of $23,500 a year lawmaker's salary was $882,500, up $71,000 from the previous year.

'76 Hiring Freeze In Ulster County

By Jon Powers

KINGSTON

The Finance Committee of the Ulster County Legislature has placed a freeze on county hiring for 1976 in an attempt to lessen the impact of soaring government costs and expenses.

Department heads meeting with the Finance Committee during the past several weeks have been told flatly that any requests for additional manpower for 1976 will be denied. In fact, the committee is closely scrutinizing all requests for additional funds in an attempt to hold spending at "austerity" levels.

"The only exceptions we are making are in emergency situations and certain additional positions that are mandated by the state and federal governments," said Peter J. Savago, chairman of both the legislature and its Finance Committee, "at present, we have not encountered any department that legitimately requires additional manpower for 1976."

Savago, a New Paltz Republican, said it isn't yet known how much money the job freeze will save Ulster County taxpayers ... or how much the final county budget for 1976 will total. "At this point, we just don't know exactly," said Savago, "it will take several more meetings before we know where we stand."

Committee member Louis M. Klein (D-Dist. 6) echoed those sentiments. "Final figures haven't been computed yet," he said, "but hopefully we will be able to hold any major increases in line with the decision to put a lid on all hiring."

And Klein concurred that "there isn't any department" that can't operate effectively and efficiently in 1976 without staff increases.

With one notable exception, many of the county's department heads themselves agreed with that assessment, the lone dissenter was Sheriff Thomas Mayone, who said the county could find itself "in serious trouble" if additional deputies aren't hired.

Mayone said that his budget proposals for 1976 included requests for 12 additional deputies at the Ulster County Jail, 10 extra deputies for road patrols, three new positions for the civil department and several additional detectives. Forget it, said the committee.

Mayone's dilemma, however, is apparently not shared by other department heads in the county.

PROBATION DEPARTMENT — "We should be able to provide the same level of service next year," said probation director Stephen Morris, "but any expansion of existing programs or addition of new programs will be limited." Morris requested one new position for 1976, that request was denied by the Finance Committee.

HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT — "We can still do the job," said Highway Superintendent Richard Gray, "but we could do it better and easier with more help."

HEALTH DEPARTMENT — "It will mean we'll have to work a little harder," said Dr. Bartholomew J. Dutto, commissioner of health, "but we can do it. The state is making more demands on us, but we'll just have to put matters on a priority basis. We can live with it, at least for a year." Dutto had requested six additional nurses for the health department; the request was denied.

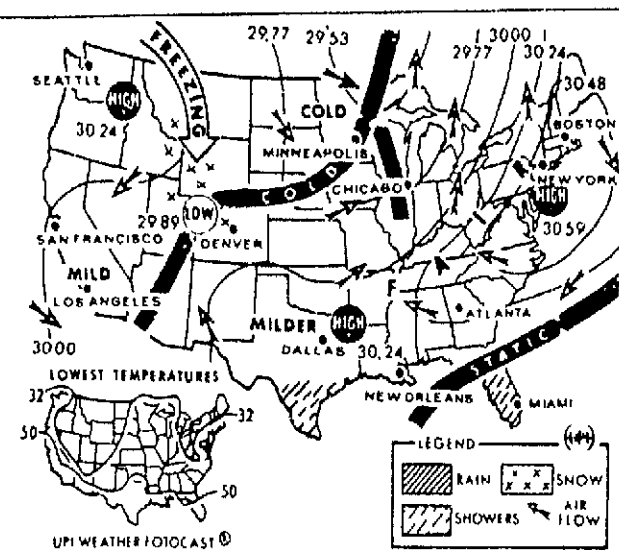

SOCIAL SERVICES — This is the only department immune from the hiring freeze, because virtually all of the social service programs are mandated by the state or federal governments. Failure to provide those mandated programs could cost the county several million dollars in government reimbursements. Social Services Commissioner Bernhardt S. Krumer estimated that perhaps 20 new staff members will be needed next year to fulfill new program obligations.

At present, 1,294 persons are employed by Ulster County, including Ulster County Community College. The 1975 budget was $15.7 million.

Reunited

Angelique Rasinan's pet Afghan, "Sami," galloped back into her arms, and that was the best medicine of all for the ailing 2 1/2 year old Detroit resident. Angelique was born with two holes in her heart and underwent major surgery in July to repair the hole in one artery. She must eat a lot to gain weight and strength to undergo another operation. When her pet Afghan disappeared on Wednesday, she just sat and cried. The dog was returned on Wednesday. (UPI)

Award for Hope

Comedian Bob Hope is congratulated by Jeremiah Milbank Jr., president of ICD Rehabilitation and Research Center, after Hope was presented the ICD Communications Award at ceremony at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York City Tuesday. Looking on are Dow Jones Chairman William F. Kerby (C) and Isaac B. Graniger (C, rear), a vice president of ICD. Hope was cited for his "unique achievements in enriching the lives of his fellow citizens through the art of communication." Hope holds the award. (UPI)

Debrosky Attacks Connolly

ROSENDALE County Legislator Glenn Debrosky (R-Dist.6), a member of the Ulster County Tax Base Study Committee, has scored Rosendale Assessor Edward Connolly for ineptitude and lying and has asked that he resign from office.

Debrosky said the town board erred in placing on the ballot the question of retention of elected assessors or appointment of a full-time assessor without presenting "both sides of the issue."

And he claimed Connolly's statements were "bold face lies for which he was censured by his own peers, the Ulster County Assessors Association."

Debrosky threw in a nepotism charge ("one will never know whether statements were made to protect his wife's job . . . as secretary or his son's job . . . as data collector . . .") and claimed "Rosendale is the worst assessed town in the county."

He said the town is the only one that failed to submit the last progress report to the county; that is one of two towns in the county that will not be assessed 100 per cent by next May; and he called for "positive action."

The action Debrosky had in mind was electing two new assessors; not appointing Connolly chairman of the board of assessors or "the most positive action could be rendered by Mr. Connolly himself—he could resign from office."

'Custom Curfew'

KINGSTON Mayor Francis R. Koenig announced today that Halloween will be celebrated in Kingston on Friday night and that as has been the custom in years past, there will be a "strict" 8 p.m. curfew. In addition, "trick or treaters" will be restricted to their respective neighborhoods.

"Halloween is for the young children to enjoy," Koenig said today, "but only in their own neighborhoods."

"Parents, please know where your children are at all times. The members of the Kingston

Police Department and Fire Departments and all volunteer firemen in the city will be out in force to protect the children and property of our residents, especially the elderly residents of our city who may be incapacitated and not physically able to invite children into their homes.

"Parents in each block know where the elderly live and should request their children to extend special courtesies to these families."

"In the event a Halloween party is held, special arrangements should be made so that children are chaperoned to and from the designated party," he said.

"I would like to commend the children and especially their parents for their past cooperation in helping to make Halloween safe and free from vandalism," Koenig concluded.

Open Exams Are Slated

KINGSTON The Kingston Recreation Commission will sponsor a Halloween party for children aged 7 to 13 Friday from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Rondout Neighborhood Center.

Dunking for apples, musical chairs, and balloon breaking will be featured, with prizes for the winners. Costumes will be judged and prizes awarded for most scary, most original, most beautiful, and best overall costumes.

There will also be a dance at the community center for local teenagers not affected by the curfew, beginning at 9 p.m. Costumes are desirable but not necessary. Refreshments will be served.

Halloween Party

GLASCO The annual Halloween party for the children of Glasco Fire District will be held Friday at 7 p.m. at the firehouse. The event is sponsored by the Ladies Auxiliary assisted by Glasco Fire Company. Judging of costumes is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. with refreshments to be served after the judging.

Ulster Curfew

Carmine Sabino, supervisor of the Town of Ulster, has announced that the Town will observe a 9 p.m. curfew on Friday, Halloween night.

Congress Has Slim Hopes Of Saving New York City

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democrats in Congress are going ahead with efforts to pass a bill to save New York City from bankruptcy, but they sense they are losing the battle.

The Democrats say President Ford's decision to veto such legislation makes the city's default inevitable and its future uncertain for years. They foresee New York state's default by springtime — with unforeseeable consequences in a shaky economy.

There is support here for Ford's proposal, announced Wednesday and sharply criticized by New York officials, to put the city under the control of a federal judge when default occurs.

The bankruptcy laws were not designed to accommodate the financial collapse of a unit of government. Without a change along the lines Ford has proposed, lawsuits by bondholders demanding payment could prevent the city from using its revenues to pay police and firemen.

The Senate Banking Committee was expected to approve a bill today to provide $4 billion in federally guaranteed loans to New York City — the type of "bailout" that Ford said Wednesday he is "prepared to veto."

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon was to testify today against such a bill before a House subcommittee.

New York officials generally were outraged at Ford's proposal Wednesday to try to deal with New York's problems after a default on debts instead of trying to prevent default.

Mayor Abraham Beame said Ford was waging "a cold war on the domestic front" and creating a climate that will in fact lead to default. Gov. Hugh Carey called it a plan for "federally supervised martial law." Both continued to press for a federal guarantee to prevent default.

New York City Council President Paul O'Dwyer called Ford's speech an "outrageous, irresponsible diatribe that Richard Nixon, at his worst, would never have uttered."

Congressional reaction to Ford's speech was divided, generally along party lines. Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., called it "political quackery." Sen. Robert Griffin, R-Mich., called it "exactly the right thing."

Democrats are uncertain they have the votes to pass a loan guarantee. Outside New York, public opinion appears to be running with Ford and against any help for the city. A Senate filibuster is threatened. Even if a bill passes, overriding a veto appears to be out of the question.

In New York, officials said default is likely to occur Nov. 17, when another round of city debt becomes due and neither the city nor the state will have the resources to repay it.

What happens then is uncertain — especially if, as appears possible, Congress has not completed action on the bill to put the city through bankruptcy proceedings.

Aside from backing bankruptcy revision, it was not clear just how far Ford would help New York. He said in his speech that if default occurred "the federal government will work with the court to assure that police, fire and other essential services for the protection of life and property in New York are maintained."

William Seidman, Ford's economic coordinator, refused to say later if that meant Ford would support a small loan for a limited period to tide the city over an emergency.

Spokesman Ron Nessen, flying with Ford to California after the speech, said Ford did not think any federal money would be needed as part of the program he had offered.

THE NEWS STORY

Reaction Is Sharp

NEW YORK (UPI) — New York City newspapers reacted sharply today to President Ford's pledge to veto federal loan guarantees for the city.

The President's statements were "a stab in the back of a great city," the Daily News said in an editorial. The News' front-page headline reported "Ford to City: Drop Dead."

The New York Times said in an editorial that Ford's "fair and sensible" plan for purging New York of its fiscal sins and restoring the city to solvency is neither sensible nor fair.

"Like a bemused stranger from another place and time, President Ford yesterday addressed the contemporary crisis in urban America's largest city in terms of the political and economic dogmas of an 18th-century rural confederacy," the Times said.

"What President Ford seemed to be saying yesterday is that it is a waste of time to throw a drowning man a life preserver."

ERA AND SUPPORT DURING MARRIAGE

Marriage is a private agreement between a husband and wife. Courts recognize the private nature of marriage. They know that it is love and affection which makes a marriage work, not the law.

In a broken marriage, ERA would assure that rights and obligations be determined on the basis of each member's contribution whether it be homemaking or earning a wage.

The homemaker, usually the wife, would in fact be entitled to support; the wage earner, usually the husband, would have an obligation to provide that support.

Rep. Fish Backs Assistance

WASHINGTON, D.C.

Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr. (R-25th), a member of the House Committee on Banks which has been holding hearings on the New York City fiscal crisis, has called for federal guarantees for the city's debt payment.

"After literally hundreds of hours of briefings on these problems, I have reluctantly come to the conclusion that assistance to New York City is not charity," Fish said. "It is a matter of economic survival."

Fish noted that ramifications from the New York City situation have already been felt upstate with some school districts with triple-A bond ratings (the highest) paying as high as 12.5 for bonds where they were paying four or five per cent a few months ago. Ulster County and the city of Kingston both have high bond ratings.

Fish says the real crunch could come next April when the state must borrow some $2.5 billion in short term notes to cover gaps between revenues and expenditures during the early months of its budget.

"As these forms of state aid are included in every local and schools budget as 'anticipated revenue' one can imagine the chaotic situation if this revenue is not available," Fish said.

In the meantime, Fish and 37 other House members have called on the Ford Administration to implement two federal bond guarantee programs.

The program Fish and his congressional colleagues want implemented would allow the secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development to: place the full faith and credit of the United States behind taxable bonds issued by state housing agencies; subsidize interest payments up to 33.3 per cent of the total interest cost of such bonds; and allow HUD to insure a certain percentage of any mortgage.

In a letter addressed to HUD Secretary Carla Hills, Congressman Fish and his colleagues pointed out that the 12 state housing finance agencies are now in trouble, while two (New York and Massachusetts) have been forced to seek state bond guarantees in order to market their notes.

"New York State," the letter noted, "must soon take action to help its state housing agency meet a $500 million short-term debt which comes due in December. It has become quite clear that due to the crisis in the municipal bond market, state housing finance agencies can no longer carry the financial burden without some form of federal backing."

"Events over the past few months," concluded the letter, "have convinced us that without some form of federal backing, state housing finance agencies will soon find it impossible to meet their short-term responsibilities or realize their long-range goals. As representatives from states which administer state housing finance agencies across the country and bring to an abrupt halt the fragile efforts currently being undertaken to increase new housing production."

"Despite the dimensions of the problem, HUD has had the authority to act in a responsible fashion for over a year, but has not seen fit to address itself to this concern. Without implementation of these programs, it is difficult to imagine how some housing agencies will continue to raise the funds needed to produce new housing. Hopefully, the letter we are sending will have some impact," Congressman Fish stated.

Nine Americans Included in Freedom Flight

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Nine smiling Americans flew out of North Vietnam to freedom today, nearly eight months after being captured during the Communist conquest of South Vietnam.

The Americans, looking thin but exuberant, landed with five other freed foreigners at Bangkok airport this afternoon after a stopover in Vientiane.

Peter Whitlock, a released Australian communications expert, was grabbed by what appeared to be embassy officials after landing and was pushed into a car. He was whisked away from the airport for reasons not clear.

The other 13 refugees were greeted by U.S. Ambassador Charles Whitehouse, who boarded the Royal Air Lao plane briefly as it rolled to a stop and then descended to the tarmac with the group.

All were dressed in Western-style sports clothes and gave the appearance of having traveled on just another routine flight from Laos. Attire on these flights is usually casual.

The nine Americans, two Canadians, two Filipinos and one Australian left the North Vietnamese capital of Hanoi shortly before noon on a flight sponsored by the United Nations Commission for Refugees.

"We're fine, really fine," Mrs. Carolyn Miller of Houghton, N.Y., said after stepping down from the aircraft in a stopover at Vientiane. "We're just worried about our families back home."

Mrs. Miller, 35, and her husband, John, 45, were missionaries translating the Bible for the Summer Institute of Linguistics in Ban Me Thuot.

The Central Highlands city was captured by the Communists at the start of the spring offensive that led to their takeover of South Vietnam.

Their 6-year-old daughter, LuAnne, captured with them, was believed to be the youngest American prisoner held by the Communists.

All 14 of the group were expected to stay in Bangkok until they can arrange for their future.

The refugees said they were well treated during their detention at Ban Me Thuot and Pleiku in the Central Highlands and later at Son Tay in North Vietnam.

They said Communist authorities did not refer to them as prisoners but as "foreigners led to safety by the liberation armed forces."

Whitlock had worked for several years in Southeast Asia as an employee of the Australian Broadcasting Commission.

He had been assigned to a hill tribes station in Thailand north of Bangkok and was visiting a similar station in South Vietnam when the Communists overran Ban Me Thuot.

All but one of the Americans was captured at Ban Me Thuot.

John Lewis, an American official, was seized when the port city of Phan Rang fell to the Communists on April 20.

Other freed Americans were Paul Strunarik, U.S. provincial representative at Ban Me Thuot; Richard Phillips, his wife, Lillian, and Betty Mitchell, all missionaries, and Jay Scarborough, a student doing research under a Ford Foundation grant.

Sadat Wants Peace Talks Revived

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat has asked the UN General Assembly to revive the stalled Middle East peace talks in Geneva with the participation of the Palestinian guerrillas.

Israeli UN Ambassador Chaim Herzog immediately condemned the request as "ludicrous," but diplomatic sources said the General Assembly would probably approve Sadat's proposal.

Sadat said Wednesday the Palestinian Liberation Organization, the main guerrilla group, should join the talks on an "equal footing" with the other participants — Egypt, Israel, Syria, Jordan, the United States and the Soviet Union.

"There will be no peace in the region without a political settlement of the Palestine problem," he told the General Assembly. "It is inconceivable, nay, utterly unacceptable, that the Palestinian people should remain homeless and dispersed."

The Geneva conference was established after the 1973 Middle East War to find a peaceful settlement.

The conference has been reduced, however, to a formality, while most of the actual peace talks have been conducted by Israel with its Arab neighbors through the mediation of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

Herzog said Israel can not negotiate with the PLO, because the guerrilla group wants to destroy the Jewish state.

"It would be ludicrous to expect us to sit together with someone who does not recognize the right of Israel to exist and calls for its destruction," he said.

Sadat told the assembly his delegation would sponsor a resolution calling for renewed Geneva talks that include the PLO.

Diplomats said the approval by the General Assembly was widely considered a certainty, because the lopsided representation of Asian, African and Soviet bloc countries often favor Arab measures.

They said the resolution would put pressure on the United States to retreat from its position of backing Israel in refusing to deal with the PLO.

The assembly was to begin debate on the Palestine question Monday and Sadat's speech was apparently a well-timed prelude to introduction of the formal resolution.

Literacy Figures Are 'Shocking'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A "shocking" 20 per cent of adult Americans have difficulty coping with necessary everyday skills like shopping or getting a driver's license, a government study revising traditional concepts of literacy showed today.

The report on the four-year Adult Performance Level Study, released by the U.S. Office of Education, redefined the concept of so-called functional literacy as being more than the ability to read or write at some arbitrarily chosen grade level in school.

Skills necessary to function as an adult or to cope with everyday demands also include reading job notices, making change, locating community services or understanding insurance or income tax concepts, the report said.

By these standards, 19.7 per cent of Americans aged 16 and older "function only with difficulty," and another 33.9 per cent "are functional, but not proficient," said the report.

"It is surprising, perhaps even shocking, to suggest that approximately one of five Americans is incompetent or functions with difficulty and that about half of the adult population is merely functional and not at all proficient in necessary skills and knowledge," the report said.

The study was based on five national surveys of adults measuring reading, problem solving, computation and writing and the ability to apply these skills to everyday life situations involving jobs, health, government and law, community services and "consumer economics."

Adults had the greatest difficulty with the consumer skills, the report said, including counting money and making change, using catalogs and consumer guides to buy goods, knowing how to order food and tip in a restaurant, understanding credit systems, or buying and maintaining a car or housing.

Almost 30 per cent of the population, some 34.7 million Americans, function with difficulty in these consumer areas and another 39 million persons can cope, but not too well, the study said.

Other findings:

- Males and females perform about the same.
- Sixteen per cent of white persons are estimated to be functionally incompetent, 44 per cent of blacks and 56 per cent of Spanish-surnamed groups.
- Adults who function best have the highest levels of income, education and job status.

'No Money, No Heat'

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — If Buhl, Minn. doesn't pay its $350,000 back coal bills, the town will be without coal by the weekend. And temperatures are already in the 20s.

Last Friday, the two coal suppliers for the vintage 1918 city heating plant cut off all further deliveries until they got their money — or a down payment thereon.

Though much of the town's 1,303 residents in northern Minnesota had converted to privately operated heating devices, there still were 203 customers for city heat, including schools, nursing homes and residences.

Complicating the problem is a shortage of heating contractors to install home heating devices. Officials have asked contractors in Minnesota's large cities — Minneapolis, St. Paul, Duluth — for emergency help.

But that's not the only problem. It's also gotten down to a political question of one government agency bailing out another — and echo of New York City's battle with the federal government for financial assistance.

Gov. Wendell Anderson has indicated he is willing to lend Buhl emergency funds to buy fuel, but he emphasized it will be a loan and not a bailout grant.

Buhl Mayor Lawrence Haglund said it was an "hour by hour" crisis, but emphasized there were two entities involved — the city and the city utilities company.

The city, he said, was solvent and in reasonably good shape; the utilities were not.

Last weekend the Minneapolis Star-Tribune published the results of a poll that showed 45 per cent of Minnesotans polled favored federal assistance for New York.

Are the citizens of Buhl in favor of such assistance to New York?

"They aren't talking about it much," Haglund said. "They're just talking about whether we are going to freeze or not."

CHICAGO (UPI) — Albert Speer, convicted Nazi war criminal and industrial architect of the Hitler regime, is thinking of coming to the United States but fears the trip "would do harm to others who have suffered by Hitler."

"I understand them," Speer said in a television interview.

"But they should understand, too, that I was the only one that said to the judges at the Nuremberg Trial that I not only take responsibility for my actions, but I also feel a responsibility for everything that happened in Hitler's government."

Speer, 70, is the only ranking member of the Third Reich, who has talked and written candidly about the Nazi regime in recent years and who made an outright confession.

He lives in near total seclusion at his mansion home in Heidelberg, Germany, and was interviewed there by Phil Donahue of WGN-TV of Chicago.

In the interview, Speer denied that either his first book, "Inside the Third Reich," or his soon-to-be released memoirs, the "Spandau Diaries," scrawled out in prison on thousands of pieces of scratch paper and toilet paper, were written for his own ends.

"If I would have done things opportunistically, I would have left many things out of my first book," he said.

He said Hitler's charisma lured him to join the Nazi cause and help Germany amass one of the largest war arsenals in the world although he never had "a conviction" on the matter.

"This in my opinion gives me much more guilt than anyone else," he said.

Speer said a portion of the American income from the books would go toward charities. His publisher, Macmillan Co. of New York, confirmed his statement and said it was assumed the contributions were going to causes of world Jewry.

It was believed to be only Speer's second American television interview in the nine years since he was set free from Berlin's Spandau War Crimes Prison in 1966.

In the two-hour interview, Speer also said:

— Rudolph Hess, the last imprisoned major war criminal, should be released because he has been incarcerated for 30 years and "is suffering too much."

— The only modern ruler resembling Hitler is President Idi Amin Dada of Uganda, but leaders who are "charming, humble" can be as dangerous. — He plotted to assassinate Hitler by injecting poison gas into his quarters in the final months of the war, but "was relieved" when the plan failed.

— He did not know about the mass executions at Hitler's concentration camps until 1944, although a friend told him "terrible things were going on there."

Koenig and Gallo

At a time when the largest city in our state is on the brink of bankruptcy, it is good news to know that the City of Kingston is financially sound, due in large part to the present administration.

For that reason in particular The Freeman strongly endorses the team of Mayor Francis R. Koenig and Alderman-At-Large T. Robert Gallo for re-election.

Since taking office six years ago, Koenig and Gallo have shown sensitivity to the needs of the city and its residents.

Koenig is a dedicated civil servant. His accomplishments in the field of housing have been outstanding. Proof can be found in the construction of Dutch Village Apartments, Broadway East Housing, Stuyvesant and Kingston Pride Apartments — all of them tax-paying properties.

Improvements in recreational areas, increased fire and police protection and completion of the uptown Pike Plan bear further testimony to the accomplishments of the incumbent administration.

Gallo serves as a right arm to the mayor. In addition to his duty as presiding officer of the Common Council, he is an ex-officio member of its committees and serves as acting mayor when required to do so.

Koenig and Gallo have spent hours beyond the call of duty in serving the city and their re-election would assure its residents two more years of good leadership and good government.

While endorsing Koenig and Gallo, The Freeman also notes the campaigns of Republican candidates William Darling and Emily Johnson and Conservative candidates Bernard Singer and Roberta Kolts.

Singer has attacked the administration for failing to adequately staff the assessor's office, thus costing the taxpayers an additional $120 for every $20,000 worth of property they own. His suggestion is a sound one and should be implemented by whom-ever is elected to the office.

The Freeman takes exception to Singer's latest proposal — to build the Kingston Hospital on the vacant land across from the new city hall. There isn't enough room for a small hospital on that land, not alone one the size of Kingston Hospital.

Darling has waged an energetic campaign. He has, for the most part, emphasized that a change is needed because six years in power is long enough for one party.

He has been critical of the administration on a number of relatively minor issues such as the swimming pool and municipal auditorium but has failed to propose concrete solutions to most of the major problems facing the city in the next two years.

His plea to elect a new mayor simply because the Koenig-Gallo team has been in office for six years doesn't hold water in light of the fine record of the incumbents.

'Yes' on Amendment 7

Amendment 7 is a proposal to expand the kinds of games of chance now in operation under the sponsorship of religious, charitable and other organizations.

There is now one game called bingo. The new law would provide for such games as bird cages and wheels of chance and would enable such groups as fire companies and churches to raise money in an easy way.

The Freeman heartily endorses Amendment 7.

By JACK ANDERSON with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Outwardly, Richard W. Velde might appear to be a mild-mannered, middle-aged bureaucrat. But behind his dark-rimmed spectacles, button-down collar and conservative-cut clothes, he has confided to associates, he possesses "the body of a 25-year-old."

He is quick to produce his medical charts, moreover, to prove it.

Velde is boss of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, which is supposed to assist local policemen. He wants to assist them, most of all, to be youthfully strong like he is. For the 43-year-old administrator with the 25-year-old anatomy is a physical fitness freak.

He has spent huge sums of the taxpayers' money on exercise equipment and fitness programs to improve the muscle tone of the constabulary. One $541,623 grant has been set aside specifically "to promote physical fitness in police officers." An estimated $200,000 of this will be invested in exercise and medical paraphernalia.

Velde also hoped to develop, as we previously related, a Dick Tracy wristwatch, which would provide the cop on the move with a digital readout of his blood pressure, pulse rate and body temperature — in case he should wish to check on the state of his health as well as the time of day.

This $300,000 project was abruptly dropped, much to Velde's disappointment, after our story appeared. "The watch is a dead issue," an LEAA spokesman told us sadly.

Velde has also spent small sums of the taxpayers' money on his physical fitness interests. Among his body-building exercises, for instance, he has become an inveterate jogger. On the day of the Boston marathon, he arranged an official trip to Boston.

A spokesman insisted that Velde did not participate in the event but merely watched the race out of a window.

He is not so addicted to jogging, however, that he is willing to give up his limousine privileges — as Congress has called upon such government gadabouts to do. His predecessors managed to get along with whatever conveyances might be seized in drug raids. One drove a contraband Buick, another a confiscated Audi.

But Velde rises in a more stylish, black Mercury Marquis, with a telephone suitable for a busy executive. He has used his government limousine, his chauffeur has confessed to the inspector general, to haul his wife and children around.

Paradoxically, Velde claims at least one flaw in his fine physique. He insists that a tailbone ailment makes it necessary for him to fly first-class. His 43-year-old tailbone, he attests, requires the larger, luxurious seats in the first-class section.

The cause of the pain in Velde's tailbone, a spokesman explained solemnly, was too much sitting in airplanes. During the first year as LEAA's administrator, Velde spent $14,069.31 for air fare and another $2,668.47 for miscellaneous travel expenses. His trips took him from Atlanta to Alaska, New Orleans to Las Vegas, New York to Hawaii.

The soft-spoken Velde, whose lanky frame and receding hairline give him the appearance of everybody's next-door neighbor, is a protégé of Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb., the Senate's self-proclaimed champion of mediocrity.

Ex-President Nixon resisted Hruska's entreaties to elevate Velde to the top of the LEAA totem pole for five years. But in the closing hours of his presidency, Nixon needed Hruska's support for an anticipated impeachment battle in the Senate.

Nixon relented at the last minute and nominated Velde to head the LEAA. It was one of Nixon's last nominations. The buffeted LEAA is still stuck with it.

Footnote: Velde is also an amateur shutterbug. Our sources say he has helped himself to LEAA's photographic equipment. This is denied by a spokesman who swore: "Velde has never had film processed for his own personal benefit. He does not have the camera at home."

But our associate, Bob Owens, checked with LEAA's audio visual department, which acknowledged that Velde checks out a Nikon camera "for a couple of weeks at a time." He also picks up film, usually about five rolls at a time. He submits the film for processing, which is done at government expense. But the audio visual people send him the developed pictures unopened.

WASHINGTON WHIRL: Sen. Paul Fannin, R-Ariz., recently pushed a bill through Congress to construct an aqueduct in arid Arizona. The project, which will be completed around 1985, will improve property values and benefit real estate brokers, including the Senator's son, Tom Fannin, who runs a real estate office in Phoenix. A spokesman for the Senator said he started pushing the aqueduct long before his son opened a real estate office.

Although the Supreme Court has upheld the separation of church and state, the respected Justice Potter Stewart instructed a court employee to use the court's photocopy equipment to run off hundreds of copies of religious tracts for his son, David Stewart. Official business was held up until the religious run was completed. Young Stewart, a volunteer, explained that the material was distributed to a children's hospital group.

We recently reported the results of a secret Environmental Protection Agency study, which stated that half the polled EPA employees believe their agency is "not doing a good job." A furious Russell Train, the EPA boss, fired a memo to 10,600 employees assailing our article. The eight-page packet included a press release and copies of letters to editors. The cost of this effort, we have learned, was more than $525.

"Oh, That. It's a Gift From a Friend."

By William F. Buckley

The New Yorker Magazine, which has always been respected as a stylistic trendsetter in recent years, as everyone knows who is familiar with this entertaining, instructive, and readable weekly, has gone in for high colonial Conscience-Flushing. It is a pity that the lead writers in the Talk of the Town section of the magazine tend to make the rather common mistake of identifying their own conscience with that of the republic. During the Vietnam years, the screech of pain became all but unbearable, and some of us came close to suggesting to the publishers that they bring out two editions of The New Yorker, one with, one without the opening pages — charging double for the shorter, unencumbered version.

It is not known what exactly happened over there. Perhaps the editors are seeking to do penance for the fit of idolatry in the issue in which they commented on John F. Kennedy's inaugural address — the one in which the new President swore that we would undertake any sacrifice, bear any pain, proceed if necessary alone, to guarantee freedom everywhere in the world — an exalted rhetoric that greatly impressed many people at the time, and took us to war in Vietnam.

With the removal of U.S. forces, one hoped for remission in The New Yorker, but it is very slow in coming. Most recently, the Talk of the Town rambled on about the CIA hearings, concluding that it is really very hard nowadays to distinguish between conventional bad guys, like the Mafia and the KGB, and ostensible good guys, like the CIA and the FBI. Indeed, the editorial concluded, "the CIA, the SLA, the FBI, and Charles Manson's family were mingling on our television screens, in our thoughts, and, it seemed, in the real world, and it was getting harder by the minute to tell them apart." Here is a fine example of the rhetorical art put to narcissistic excess. It is one thing to say: "I find it harder and harder to tell them apart."

Another to say "It is getting harder to tell them apart."

Me, I have no trouble at all telling apart Charles Manson, say, and James Angleton. But no doubt about it, in the real world, which however is a world over-affected by the formative thought of eastern seaboard liberalism, they are having the same trouble, and it is really getting to the point where ex-employees of the CIA, who once were something of an aristocracy among public servants — men and women who worked in anonymity, sometimes risking their lives to forward a foreign policy that had bipartisan political backing, and was oriented to the idealistic task of stemming by means short of war the Communist tide — found themselves, on revealing their past association in the course of applying for another job, being treated as cretins.

It is both a pity that Mr. Eric Biddle Jr. now feels he has to take the matter to court, and a relief that he is doing so, in what amounts to something of a class action on behalf of all former members of the CIA who are being treated shabbily — by the government of the United States.

Mr. Biddle worked for the CIA between 1950 and 1960, and so far as is known did not assassinate, or lay the grounds for assassinating, any member of the Kennedy family, or any civil rights leader. When in 1965 he decided to go back into government service, he found himself in due course working for a government agency called Action, about which I know little and therefore suspect it shouldn't even exist.

On the discovery by his employers that he had worked for the CIA, the harassments began, and became so acute that, finally, Biddle was driven to suing the Civil Service Commission. The Commission came up with the most extraordinary finding in recent history: the ban against discrimination by government agencies, e.g. by reason of race, sex, age, etc., did not extend to a ban against discrimination by reason of having worked for another and presumably nefarious branch of government.

So: Eric H. Biddle Jr. vs. The United States of America goes now to the United States District Court for the District of Columbia, and it becomes Mr. Biddle's burden, to return to the language of The New Yorker, to persuade the court that there is an observable difference between having worked for the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency, and having camped out with Charles Manson and Squeaky and the girls, honing the kitchen knives. Presumably any juror who reads The New Yorker will be disqualified for cause.

Squeaky, Daughter of the Market Place

The letters to the editor section of The Wall Street Journal has been in a mild state of tizzification about a piece in that publication by Claire Boothe Luce called "The Significance of Squeaky Fromme." Only a mind as inventive as Ms. Luce's would discover any significance in Ms. Fromme whatsoever.

If Ms. Fromme and her evil preceptor, Charles Manson, represent anything, all it can be is a recurrence of a certain strain of demonic cabalism that has popped up from time to time in Western civilization over the past couple of millennia. Strange that with Ms. Luce's interest in religion she would fail to recognize devil worship and, instead, use her fine prose style to argue that Ms. Squeaky is the ineluctable consequence of those damn permissivist professors expatiating on Jean-Paul Sartre in our college classrooms.

Hers is the old, grouchy reactionary complaint that the liberals, soft underbellies and hermorrhaging hearts have put the blast on God, destroyed social discipline and raised a generation of value-free, amoral Gila monsters. "This 'intolerable disharmony' is 'the nausea' described by Sartre, which the young individual feels when he learns from his parents, teachers, or professors that life is meaningless, that all 'morals' are relative, all ethics 'situational' and that eternal verities are so much religious mumbo-jumbo and obsolete bourgeois nonsense. Miss Fromme's philosophy is the philosophy of the counter-culture, of the Youth Revolution and the 'flower children' . . . In the words of my first boss, Conde Nast, who published Vogue, 'Style percolates down.' So do ideas. In the course of this century, atheistic liberalism, or as the intellectuals prefer to call it, 'Humanism,' has become the dominant philosophy of our educators, its dregs are the ideas of the counter-culture." Ergo, it was really John Dewey who took a shot at President Ford outside a San Francisco hotel the other day.

Ordinarily a debate about which professor killed God would be pointless, but a lot of people hold with Ms. Luce's ideas and her corollary belief that those of us who disagree with her are responsible for "the fact that America is now producing a deluge of 'warped souls' and amoral freaks."

Maybe America is, but, if it is, don't blame Jean-Paul Sartre. The end of the preeminence of moral values wasn't first taught in American classrooms by anyone approaching a modern liberal, much less a leftist, but by the intellectual representatives of the capitalist mentality that Ms. Luce so ably articulates. The doctrine of Social Darwinism, of the economic survival of the most efficient, was first preached at Yale by William Graham Sumner in the 1870's, and it is those sets of ideas involving the proposition that no value can supersede the workings of the market place which opened the door to the relativism Ms. Luce abhors.

We see it today in the Ford White House. They're holding up environmental regulation to study its cost effectiveness. They are saying that if it costs $10 billion to get PVC out of the food and water while it only costs $5 billion dollars in medical bills to treat the cancer it causes, you can't justify compelling the industrial Borgias to get the poison out of the soup. Talk about relativism, denounce amorality, will you Ms. Luce! Oh, no, if Squeaky Fromme is anybody's girl, she's yours.

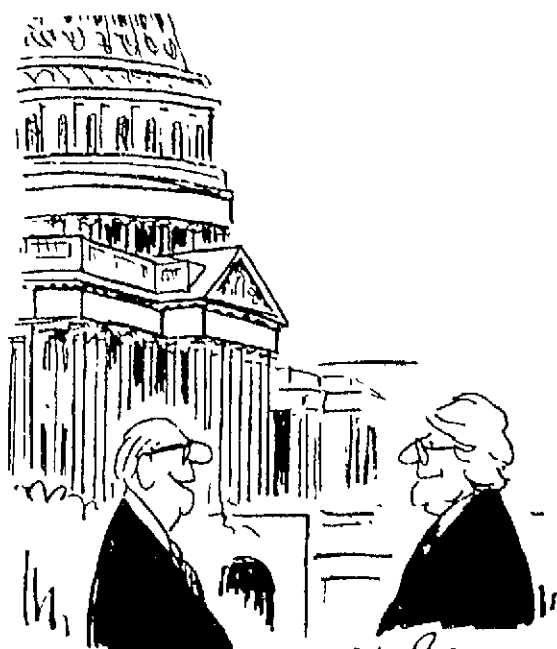

The final, degrading relativism is that which says all decisions are market decisions, and all market decisions should be amorally and objectively decided on the basis of least cost-highest profit: Let 'em be eaten by cancer, if it costs less to treat it than prevent it.

Ms. Luce is horrified that youth will break the laws, both moral and statutory, just because they want to "feel-good." This she attributes to the abandoning of "traditional Judeo-Christian moral values" by the humanistic professoriate. The contemporary professoriate is a product of her crowd, for it is an historical fact that the secularization of American education, especially at the college and university level, is owing to the financial pressure of corporate business interests.

It was the capitalists, not the socialists, who kicked the Big G out of the classrooms. It is they who continue to maintain education as a staff resource and a stamping plant for the identical value-free wimps who climb to high executive positions, where they can order up TV commercials teaching putative juvenile criminals that the summun bonum of life is immediate-feel-good. The farm, the neighborhood, the wrecking and denigration of any way of reckoning value other than the maximum buck the traffic will bear doesn't arise from the bleeding heart of the left. The truth is that the social values Ms. Luce advocates are inimical to the economic arrangements she enjoys and defends.

Claire Boothe Luce ends her moral imposture by writing: "Elizabeth Seton, the first native American to be canonized as a saint, couldn't make the cover of Time. But Lynette Fromme made it." If Ms. Luce actually believes what she's written, she shouldn't cash her Time-Life dividend checks.

"The older I get, the better the seniority system seems to work!"

Charter Opposition

Editor, The Freeman:

As a former president of the Board of Commissioners of the Kingston Water Dept. I feel it my duty to speak out in opposition to the proposed new city charter and what it will do to our Water Dept.

For over 90 years our Water Dept. has operated as almost a separate entity of our city government—this means that it was and is as free of politics as is possible and still answerable to the people. I believe our founding fathers somehow had the foresight of prophets when they separated the Water Dept. and gave it its autonomy.

My father was a foreman of the Water Dept., my uncle was in charge of our Coopers Lake for many years and I was fortunate enough to have served as a commissioner for five years. I believe we have the best run, most efficient and certainly the best water of any city in our state. And I believe (along with many others) that the proposed new city charter will change all that for the worse.

Mr. Bernard Matthews of the Charter Revision Committee says that because the Water Dept. raises its own revenues it is the same as taxation without representation. Nothing could be further from the truth. In the first place our water rates are not a tax—don't try to take it off your income tax, you cannot. Second, the commissioners are appointed by the mayor, but I do not believe we have ever had a mayor that has appointed members of the water Dept. from a strictly political standpoint.

Mr. Matthews in his statement in the Freeman finds the water Dept. lacking in efficiency, but he gives no facts nor figures that will prove the new charter will make it more efficient he also states it lacking in economy. It costs an average of $1 a week to supply a family of 3 with our wonderful water, in these days nothing we purchase is as economical (and as good and wholesome) as our Kingston water.

The rules and regulations of the Water Dept. says that the commissioners shall set its own budget and rates and raise the money necessary to run the department. —BUT—it also says that if there is a surplus at year's end that surplus shall revert to the general fund of the city.

Naturally the Water Commissioners are only going to set a budget and rates that will be necessary to run the Water Dept. efficiently and so that there will be no surplus, that is one reason our rates are so low.

Now the proposed new charter will take this function away from the Water Dept. and the aldermen (Common Council) will set the budget and the rates of the Water Dept.

Can you imagine what will happen to our water rates when the Common Council is aware that it can raise the water rates and use the money for other functions of our city government?

Several years ago we had another Charter Revision Commission and they proposed similar changes in our Water Dept. Thankfully, an aware citizenry voted it down.

The day after the proposed new city charter was presented, Mayor Francis Koenig announced his opposition to the proposed changes in the Water Dept.

At the first public hearing held on the new charter, speaker after speaker, including incumbent aldermen, expressed opposition to the changes in the Water Dept.

I, too, take this means, in the interest of a continuing efficient and politics free Water Dept., plead with our citizens to vote NO on the proposed new city charter on Election Day.

For Good Government,
DONALD R. HYATT

Rape Law Points

Editor, The Freeman:

I feel strongly that you should print a retraction of the inaccurate and misleading statement in your lead article of October 19 that (under ERA): "The laws prohibiting statutory rape—which involve a willing female under the age of consent—would have to be changed or repealed, since both willing partners would have to assume equal responsibility for their actions."

The phrase, "a willing female under the age of consent" is a contradiction in term. Willingness or unwillingness is irrelevant. The whole point of the law is that a child below the statutory age of consent can NOT be expected to "assume equal responsibility."

To take an extreme example, cases have been reported of rape victims as young as 15 months. To imply that the law would have to be repealed unless changed to make a child victim equally responsible with an adult attacker (because they are of opposite gender) is wildly erroneous and irresponsible journalism. Mr. Powers is describing an adult situation in which willing partners of opposite sex do, of course, assume equal responsibility. Fortunately for the survival of the human race, that is not a crime, and never was.

Where the law might be found discriminatory is as between a male and a female perpetrator. To take another extreme example, an 18-year-old girl who seduces a 17-year-old boy is (theoretically) subject to prosecution for statutory rape. An 18-year-old girl who seduces a 17-year-old boy is not. Strictly speaking, it is true that the alternative to revision is repeal, a remote possibility which exists always.

Very truly yours,
LOIS BENZ

Opposes ERA Liberation

Editor, The Freeman:

Ordinarily, I listen attentively when the League of Women Voters endorses a cause. However, the arguments given recently by the Ulster County League president, Dorothy Vilches, in her support of ERA are shrouded in doubt.

As a wife (non-working) and mother of young children, I feel that the ERA proponents are ignoring or ducking the very real threat to the American family posed by the ERA. In our times, the family is already besieged with stress—financial, emotional and increasing political pressure. Radical feminist groups like NOW are trying to shame women who opt to stay home to cherish their families. Few social agencies genuinely try to help stabilize the family, which society must admit, is still the best environment to raise America's future citizens. I know we can't return to the "good old days" when the multi-layered family (Grandpa, aunts, cousins etc.) gave identity and stability to family members. But despite the changing roles between parents, young children are best cared for in their own homes when possible.

Another threat to family solidarity is the weakening of sexual identity by the unisexual and homosexual thrusts which will be effected if ERA passes. In Colorado, which already has a State ERA, six homosexual marriages have occurred. One homosexual "couple" has applied for adoption and has not been rejected and probably cannot be on basis of sex.

I strongly feel that it is anti-family to institutionalize a way of life that works against traditional family units. Our children deserve to be protected against flagrant indoctrination in a homosexual lifestyle.

The Rockefeller Foundation has given hundreds of thousands of dollars to promote ERA as a means to control population—get mother out of home, interested in her job, easy abortions if pregnancy occurs, emphasize motherhood is not fulfillment, the cry for more day nurseries. I wonder what will happen when the day care nursery workers decide to strike; and neither Mom nor Dad can take time off. I also wonder what will happen to family life in America.

I don't want the kind of liberation offered by ERA. I reaffirm the sanctity of the family.

Sincerely,
MARIA OMURA

Year of Opportunity

Editor, The Freeman:

An Open Letter to Olive Residents — Pencils, Pins, Promises: —

Election time is upon us again, but this is a year of opportunity for Olive residents. This year we have new faces and new choices. One of these candidates has shown qualities which make him the most qualified candidate we have seen in many years.

That candidate is Richard Cooper who is running for Councilman. We have had occasion to see him at various meetings and he is very impressive to listen to and watch in action. His intelligence is evident in the questions he asks, as is his sincerity. He has exhibited his willingness to do his homework to get things done; he is not satisfied with empty answers.

He may even start a new breed of politician, for he has said he doesn't care who gets credit for what he's done as long as something gets done for the people.

This is the kind of person Olive needs — now, more than ever!

Supports Miner

Editor, The Freeman:

This election day you will have the opportunity to vote for an outstanding young attorney who is running for Justice of the Supreme Court in the 3rd Judicial District. This man is Roger J. Miner — for 20 years part of firm (with his father) of Miner & Miner — a native of Columbia County where he is viewed with pride by all. Mr. Miner received his judicial education at Columbia College and New York Law School. He is an articulate and erudite jurist — and executes his office with skill and zeal. His experience and intellectual prowess together with his natural warm-hearted way with people make him a fair and compassionate man.

I've heard him speak. I've seen him work. I know his reputation. He is my friend and I recommend him to you for Justice of the Supreme Court.

Election Dilemma

Editor, The Freeman:

After the Woodstock League of Women Voters' Candidates night, a few of us tried to decide who we would vote for in the upcoming election. We all agreed that both parties have fielded the best set of candidates in any election since we've lived here. Therefore, it should be possible to elect the best board the town has had in the past ten years.

But as we talked, we realized that there are two peculiarities in this election which have not been made at all clear and which could prevent us from making the best use of our votes.

Because the justices will no longer sit on the town board we will vote this year for two four-year councilmen with the two top vote-getters out of the four candidates winning the available seats. But because of the appearance of the ballot and the content of some of the campaign material, we found ourselves discussing our votes as if there were two separate races with a vote for one candidate being a vote against the other. We had allowed ourselves to be deprived of the freedom to vote for the candidates of our choice.

The second peculiarity of this election which affects our ability to vote our convictions stems from the fact that Val Cadden did not resign her seat as councilman. Should she be elected supervisor, her councilman seat will be vacant as of January 1st, 1976. It would then be up to the board to appoint a replacement until the 1976 elections.

But this time we're really on the horns of a dilemma. A vote for Val Cadden is also a vote to allow the new board, rather than the voter, to choose the fifth and maybe tie-breaking vote on that board. While a vote for Bill Kronenberg is also a vote to retain Val Cadden as councilman for two years.

There is certainly more to this election than merely choosing the best candidates from the slate of nominees. As I write this I don't know which way to go, but I'm sure going to give it a lot of thought before I decide.

Honors for Y Retiree

Joseph Bosco, second from left, was honored recently at a retirement dinner held at the Holiday Inn. Bosco retired Sept. 1 after several years as building superintendent of the local YMCA of Kingston and Ulster County. With the guest of honor are his wife, Mrs. Sophia Bosco; Wallace A. Pfeiffer, YMCA president and Robert D. Stubbs, YMCA general director.

ERA Aftermath

Editor, The Freeman:

Anyone reading the newspaper account of the ERA debate at the Business and Professional Women's Club meeting on Tuesday, October 14, at the Governor Clinton Hotel would have been totally misled about what really transpired.

The proponents of ERA were extremely rude, interrupting the opponents when they were answering questions and showing disdain for the opposing side and for some members of the audience. One of the proponents was finally called to task for her behavior by a person in the audience.

The moderator interjected her own personal feelings a number of times, allowed the opponents to be interrupted, and tried to ignore their attempts to address themselves to the audience. As a moderator, she was blatantly unfair.

I feel that no one going out to speak in public, especially invited guests as we were, nor any member of an audience, also publicly invited, should be subjected to such plain and simple bad manners.

We were happy to see the very large public turnout for the debate. It is apparent that our educational efforts are being noticed and that people want to learn more about the many possible effects of the ERA.

Sincerely,
KATHLEEN LARSON

'Shameful' Incident

Editor, The Freeman:

I think that it is shameful, that a man running for town justice, could stoop so low as to exploit a young man, with no previous record, just to maintain his image as the "Hanging Judge" and gain possible votes in the coming election.

I am referring to an incident that happened on Sept. 21, 1975, in which a young man was arrested for attempted murder. He was arraigned before Town Justice Robert Jordan and bail was then set at $100,000. At the preliminary hearing on the 23rd, charges were reduced to reckless endangerment, due to lack of evidence but bail was not reduced.

This young man without any previous record, must remain in the county jail, until his indictment which could be up to 45 days.

Last week a similar incident happened in the Town of Saugerties. The man was charged with reckless endangerment and was released on $200.00 bail.

If Town Justice Robert Jordan is this insecure about his position, then "Vive his opponent."

Israel Bond Testimonial

CHARLES RONDER

SIDNEY SPIEGEL

KINGSTON Two prominent Kingston leaders of the Jewish community, Charles Ronder and Sidney Spiegel, will be honored at a Nov. 19 dinner that will stress the need to buy Israel bonds.

Seymour Werbalowsky, chairman of the Kingston Israel Bond Committee, announced that the testimonial dinner at Temple Emanuel will honor the two for their "outstanding efforts in behalf of the Kingston Jewish community and their leadership in promoting Israel's economic development."

Since the inauguration of the bond program 25 years ago, proceeds from their sale has reached $3 billion for use in the development of every phase of Israel's economy.

Werbalowsky termed the present a "time of serious economic crisis" for Israel.

Sabino Slams Starkman Finance Record

LAKE KATRINE Town Supervisor Carmine Sabino offered "fully documented" proof today that his Democratic opponent George Starkman filed false financial statements in a bankrupt proceeding against a business Starkman was connected with some 16 years ago.

"I honestly feel that if the people of the town of Ulster are made aware of Mr. Starkman's previous business dealings they will not entrust the fiscal management of our town to him by making him supervisor," the Republican incumbent declared.

The documents he offered as proof of Starkman's financial background dealt with federal district court proceedings which commenced on Aug. 14, 1959 with Starkman's bankruptcy filing and ended in November of that year where "Starkman admitted to the United States District Court that his financial statement was false," according to Sabino's documents.

Sabino also offered testimony (written in the court records) against Starkman by the former president of the State of New York National Bank and by Arthur Ewig, an attorney connected with the case.

Sabino went on to charge that in that particular transaction, Starkman's partners were "left holding the bag" since Starkman had transferred his assets to members of his family to avoid judgment. Starkman is a certified public accountant.

Sabino again denied allegations of wrong-doing on his part raised by both Starkman and his Conservative Party opponent, Robert Stedje, in connection with the Ulster Sewer District.

Stedje, for one, has asked for an inquiry by District Attorney Francis J. Vogt into his allegations that Sabino profited from the installation of (originally unplanned and unapproved) sewer lines under some of his farm property.

Vogt, in a letter to Stedje, which he also sent to Sabino, considers the matter closed. He writes Stedje that he has checked the maps sent to him by the engineer at his request. Vogt concludes, "quite conclusively . . . there was no impropriety involved."

Vogt goes on to say, "The variance in the sewer line which you pointed out is merely a design change deemed necessary by the engineer to provide the best overall and most economical plan for serving the entire area . . . We do not contemplate any further investigation in this matter."

Ulster Man Faces Murder Charge

By Matt Spireng

TOWN OF ULSTER

A 35-year-old Town of Ulster man was charged with murder Wednesday in the alleged beating death of a 2½-year-old child.

Ward Yerry Jr. of Sawkill Trailer Park was arrested by state police BCI investigators on a second degree murder charge after an autopsy on the body of Paul Robert Shultis revealed that the child had died of contusions of the brain and had suffered internal hemorrhaging.

Authorities said the alleged fatal beating at the hands of Yerry came during attempts to toilet train the young child.

An investigation into the death was begun Tuesday night after the child was taken to Benedictine Hospital by his mother, Bonita Shultis. The child was pronounced dead on arrival by a resident physician at about 10:45 p.m. and Kingston Police Department detectives were summoned as there was evidence that the child had sustained blows to the body, face and head, authorities said.

State police BCI investigators were called in when it was learned the child resided in the Town of Ulster, and they took over the investigation, assisted by District Attorney Francis J. Vogt.

At the conclusion of the autopsy Wednesday morning, Coroner William S. Keyser ruled the death a homicide, and investigators charged Yerry with murder.

Investigators said Yerry and Mrs. Shultis resided together at the Sawkill Trailer Park.

Following arraignment before Ulster Town Justice Sherwood E. Davis, Yerry was jailed without bail pending further court action.

Police Beat

Fatal Crash

Meanwhile, in other area police matters:

An elderly Pine Bush man was killed Wednesday night in a two-car crash on Route 52 in the Town of Wawarsing.

Ellenville State Police identified the dead man as William H. Garritt, 77.

Authorities said Garritt's auto was apparently stalled across the westbound lane of Route 52 when an auto operated by Randall Clemons, 21, of Wallkill, came over the crest of a hill and, unable to stop in time, slammed broadside into the Garritt vehicle.

Garritt was pronounced dead on arrival at Ellenville Community Hospital. Clemons was also taken to the hospital, where he was listed in fair condition today. No summonses were issued in the crash.

Two Dead

The driver of a car and one of his passengers were killed Wednesday when their vehicle collided with a milk tank truck near Walden in Orange County.

State police said the operator, Mark Vavrecan, 19, of Pine Bush, died at a Newburgh hospital about three hours after the crash at Route 52 and Albany Post Road. His aunt, Antonia Baxter, 42, also of Pine Bush, was pronounced

Another Charge

A 65-year-old Bronx man who appeared in Town of Lloyd court Wednesday night to answer charges of driving while intoxicated and possession of a controlled substance (marijuana) filed earlier this month found himself facing an additional charge—criminal impersonation. State police said at the time of Vincent Lee's initial arrest he had allegedly given them a different name. Lee pleaded guilty to all charges and was fined a total of $250.

Ellenville Action

Ellenville Village Police arrested two teenagers Wednesday who they said had allegedly been looting a Warren Street residence gutted by fire earlier in the day. John Simmons, 18, of 46 Warren Street was charged with petit larceny. Fred Keener, 16, of 25 Market Street was charged with third degree criminal possession of stolen property.

Irish Rule Out Force

MONASTEREVIN, Ireland (UPI) — The Irish government has firmly ruled out force to rescue kidnapped Dutch businessman Tiede Herrema and hopes for a swift end of his captivity faded.

The government stuck to its belief that the two Irish Republican Army renegades, besieged for 10 days in the upstairs bedroom of a two-story apartment house, would eventually realize the futility of their action and surrender.

Justice Minister Patrick Cooney in a nationwide television interview Wednesday dispelled rumors that police and troops encircling the terraced house were preparing to move against the kidnapers.

"We are prepared to exercise patience, endless patience to save Dr. Herrema's life," he said.

Security around the besieged house has been intensified over the past two days leading to speculation that either the kidnapers, Eddie Gallagher, 27, and Marian Coyle, 19, were ready to come out or the police were ready to go in and get them.

"We will not take any precipitate action," Cooney said. "We are prepared to wait until the kidnapers see the futility of their action and the hopelessness of their position and give up," he said.

Cooney said Herrema, the chief executive of the Dutch-owned Ferenka company, was in good health despite his ordeal which began Oct. 3 when he was abducted near his Limerick home.

Since then he has been blindfolded, tied and hustled from one hideout to another until police finally cornered his abductors.

The two kidnapers, both naverick members of the IRA threatened to kill Herrema unless the government agreed to release three IRA prisoners.

Halloween Party

The Village of Rosendale will sponsor a Halloween party for the children of the village and town on Friday evening, Oct. 31 at the Firemen's Hall on Main Street from 7 to 9 p.m. There will be music, games, prizes and refreshments. Residents interested in helping conduct the festivities are requested to contact Ruth Ghear or Dorothy Spar.

One of Missing Found

Authorities have identified the body of one of the two women found dead in Rockland County as 22-year-old Susan Reeve (L) of Demarest, N.J., who has been missing for two weeks. The medical examiner refused, however, to say whether he believed the second woman was Susan Heynes (R) who disappeared from her home in Haworth, N.J.—some two miles from the Reeve home—a week earlier. (UPI)

Technical Difficulty

KINGSTON Due to technical difficulties, the Broadway Central television debate with 10 city candidates could not be aired on Cablevision as scheduled Wednesday night.

Dan Siegel, director of Broadway Central, said today that every effort is being made to broadcast the debate prior to election and expressed his appreciation to all who participated.

Foreigners Want Out Of War-torn Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Americans and Europeans crowded Beirut airport today for evacuation flights out of war-torn Lebanon but others not so lucky remained trapped under fire in embattled sections of the capital.

Another cease-fire called to halt the bloody fighting between Moslems and Christians was ignored.

At least 950 persons have died in the past seven weeks and more than 2,300 wounded in the factional war between Moslem leftist and Christian rightist militiamen.

U.S. Ambassador G. McMurtrie Godley sent his personal armored car, a $20,000 Cadillac, to rescue six Americans trapped in the St. Georges Hotel. The car was driven, flag flying, by the U.S. embassy's security chief, Lt. Col. Walter Brown.

The embassy also picked up a couple and their two children from the nearby Excelsior Hotel.

Rival gunmen today ignored a government announced ceasefire in the Kantari-Sanayeh-Picot area and battled on with rockets and machineguns.

Leftist forces knifed into the predominantly right-wing Phalangist territory, crossing Rue Clemenceau in a flanking movement, and appeared determined to occupy the area.

One American woman, Candy Baker, still trapped in the area said in a telephone call that armored cars that tried to make another rescue effort were driven back by gunfire. "There are armed men in Arab headdresses all over the place and the Phalangists have pulled back," she said.

Those who managed to leave the war zone had to leave nearly all their personal possessions behind. They joined hundreds of others streaming to Beirut airport to board outward-bound planes.

In the suburbs, fighting died down slightly in the Chiah-In Rummaneh area, although heavy sniper fire and the occasional machinegun burst ripped across the front-line streets adjoining the Moslem and Christian strongholds.

Away from the front, automobiles moved about in the street and hundreds of persons ventured from their homes to buy bread and provisions from stores that opened for the first time in days.

A huge pall of black smoke spiraled over Chiah from a burning apartment building, while firemen watched helplessly, unable to get their trucks through the only route to the building—a maze of narrow alleys.

Leftist forces said Phalangists had planted an incendiary bomb in the building, which is in a no-man's land between the two suburbs. Security forces took hundreds of Americans and other foreigners in convoys of armored cars through the smoky streets of Beirut to the overflowing airport.

Roasting Spada

KINGSTON Republican County Clerk Albert Spada, candidate for re-election, will be "roasted" at the Granit II in Kerhonkson Dec. 6 by local businessmen and professional people.

The Ulster County United

Way Campaign will reportedly get 50 per cent from the roast. It was noted in a United Way report that county government has already reached 95 per cent of its campaign goal, with the goal up 20 per cent from last year's figure.

Hubert, Happy Warrior Back in Limelight

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Hubert Horatio Humphrey has been a candidate for president or vice president in every campaign since 1960. But despite his decision not to seek the 1976 nomination, the happy warrior is as much in the limelight as any of the Democratic contenders — and perhaps more popular.

The Minnesota senator is very much on the campaign trail, saying he isn't running but would be receptive to a draft. Meanwhile he is showing up party fund raising affairs offering his help to the nine Democrats who have announced their candidacies.

The candidates appear anxious to provide a forum for their party's 1968 nominee, who is shunning the primaries himself. Humphrey manages to praise his hosts without endorsing any one of them, reminding audiences they can have him instead just by asking.

When House Democratic leaders saluted Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., one of the announced candidates, as a "man of the House" last week, they invited a senator — Humphrey, of course — to be master of ceremonies.

Humphrey earlier this year ended conjecture about his plans by saying: "I am not a candidate. I will not run in the primaries or seek delegates. But if they do come and offer me the nomination I will accept and run and win."

Since that announcement, Humphrey has spoken at affairs for candidates Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., former North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford, Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., and Udall.

He also moderated a candidate panel consisting of Udall, Bentsen, Sanford, Jackson, Sargent Shriver, Fred Harris and Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., and is scheduled to speak at an upcoming fund-raiser for Harris, a former senator from Oklahoma, who was a Humphrey stalwart at the 1968 convention.

Humphrey's reception at these affairs equals that given the candidate being honored.

A ranking official of the Democratic National Committee cheered mightily at the Udall dinner when Humphrey was introduced but only applauded politely when the guest of honor came to the podium.

"What's going to happen next year politically?" Humphrey asked at the Udall dinner. "Well, all I can say is don't make any bets right now. It's wide open."

Stressing the fact that he traveled the "tortuous" route of the primaries in 1968, Humphrey said "the primaries are one of the ways" to the nomination.

Senators Start '76 Funding

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Twenty of the 33 senators up for re-election next year have already started raising money for their campaigns.

Figures on file with the Federal Election Commission show Buckley has raised $326,220 and spent $260,000. Following him as top money raisers are Howard Cannon, D-Nev., John Tunney, D-Calif., and Edward Kennedy, D-Mass.

Buckley, Tunney and Sen. J. Glenn Beall, R-Md., viewed as having tough races in 1976, have launched their campaigns and already have spent a sizeable amount. Most of the others are holding on to their money.

Buckley ran as a Conservative Party candidate in 1970, and faces a primary battle for the Republican nomination next year.

Cannon has raised $272,536, a considerable amount in Nevada where the limit he can spend on next year's campaign is $374,000.

Tunney is in third place, having raised $269,079. He has spent $156,000 this year, including $15,000 on a poll.

Kennedy, relying largely on big fund raising parties, reported income this year of $244,708. One of the contributors giving the maximum $1,000 to the Kennedy campaign was Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis.

Other top Senate fund raisers are:

Harrison Williams, D-N.J., $157,864; Robert Taft, R-Ohio, $111,188; Beall, $107,268; Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., $79,145; Vance Hartke, D-Ind., $73,581; Joseph Montoya, D-N.M., $73,192; Frank Moss, D-Utah, $63,852; Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., $59,637; Gale McGee, D-Wyo., $48,829; William Brock, R-Tenn., $46,307; Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, $41,425; Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., $40,861; Quentin Burdick, D-N.D., $19,590; Hugh Scott, R-Penn., $16,634; William Roth, R-Del., $15,823; and Robert Stafford, R-Vt., $13,117.

Two Democratic senators, Henry Jackson of Washington and Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, are running for re-election and president at the same time, and had no separate record of their senate spending.

Two can ride cheaper than one.

Sign of Support on Fair Street

Friends and neighbors of Mrs. H.F. King, mother-in-law of Republican candidate for mayor William K. Darling, gather at Mrs. King's home at 127 Fair Street for erection of Darling campaign sign that measures a highly visible five by 11 feet. Mrs. King is standing to the right of the sign joined by Mrs. Darling, a number of neighbors and Darling's daughter Connie in the foreground.

Charges Negligence

KINGSTON Republican Mayoral Candidate William K. Darling charged today that Mayor Francis R. Koenig's negligence in failing to protest a 2.8 per cent drop in the city's equalization rate may have cost city residents an additional $700,000 in school and county taxes.

"As a result of the state's final decision, Kingston taxpayers will have to pay $126,428 more to the county of Ulster if last year's county budget and valuation figures are used," Darling said. "And mind you, the taxpayers would get nothing for this extra tax bite." He went on to state that every point of decrease in the equalization rate "means about a $200,000 increase in the school tax rate."

"The residents of the towns would merely pay less taxes," Darling said. "The mayor doesn't seem to care." Darling said that the almost three-point drop in equalization was the largest since Kingston was reassessed in the mid-1950s. "And the mayor doesn't even whimper," he said.

Darling said that former mayors such as Raymond Garaghan and John Schwenk went to Albany to protest equalization reductions. "Always they would come back with an improvement," he said.

Darling charged that Koenig attempted to keep secret the drop in the equalization rate, failing to communicate that fact to either the Common Council or to the public via the news media. Figures were released by the state on June 27. Darling says Koenig "doesn't really care."

"Tentative state figures are subject to review, but evidently the mayor was too busy campaigning for reelection to worry about $126,000 in taxpayers' money going for nothing," Darling asserted. "Too much of the mayor's approach to government has been to do nothing and maybe things will go away."

Stedge Demands Answers From Sabino

TOWN OF ULSTER

Robert Stedge, Conservative candidate for Town of Ulster Supervisor, today leveled another barrage of criticism at incumbent Republican Carmine Sabino, belittling alleged past accomplishments and hinting at possible irregularities in town government operations.

In the first of four statements released today — titled an "Open Letter to Carmine Sabino" (the contents of which were also used by Stedge in a political advertisement on Oct. 28) — the Conservative candidate posed nine questions that implied, without substantiation, improprieties on Sabino's part.

Stedge asked Sabino to provide the allegations and facts behind a recent Grand Jury investigation; a description of the real estate owned by the Sabino family in the Town of Ulster; a list of Sabino's immediate family formerly or currently employed by the town, and a list of claims filed by the Sabino family against the town, as well as any property "agreements" between the Sabino family and the Town of Ulster.

Election . . . 1975

Stedge also asked Sabino whether his family has unfairly benefited from the new sewer project and whether there exists any conflict of interest in the approval of two developments in the town.

In a separate release, Stedge commented directly — and often critically — on the "highlights" of Sabino's term in office.

•Removal of Town Justices from the Town Board — "When it appeared that the state might mandate such action . . . they did make the change and now claim it as one of their highlighted achievements.

•Widening of Ulster Avenue Mall — "It certainly is a tremendous improvement, but this has been more than a 20 year effort by many people. Would you really expect any less effort by the Supervisor?"

•Sewer Improvement Area — "If Sabino is going to take credit for the sewer district he should certainly shoulder the blame for what went wrong . . . I could spend an entire day on false information, deliberate deception, etc. regarding this boondoggle project."

•Police protection — "I am not going to fault the town board on something I don't have the answer to, but I do not believe they have analyzed the situation as well as they could. They have not considered all alternatives, nor have they set up any method of evaluating what they are doing."

And, in yet another release, Stedge clarified his political affiliations. He said he was an enrolled Republican until June of this year, is now a Conservative and has never sought the Democratic nomination for any office, although he has accepted Democratic endorsement on previous occasions.

Incumbent Lists Goal

SAUGERTIES

Al Ferrara, incumbent Democratic superintendent of roads in Saugerties, has stated that his goal is to see to it that all the roads in the township are eventually brought up to the Town Highway standards established by the Town Board and Planning Board.

"Sure, this will take time and money," says Ferrara, "and for that reason it has to be done gradually so that it does not put a strain on the taxpayer's pocketbook. Because the work of general maintenance must also be kept up in all seasons of the year, it is necessary to set up a priority listing so that those roads most needing reconstruction are attended to first."

Since he was elected road superintendent two years ago, the town has reconstructed completely Lodge, Lauren Tice, Buffalo, Mount Airy, Sheers, Cafaldo Park, Park Circle, and Eddy Roads and reconstructed portions of Dave Elliot and John Carle Roads. In addition, the town has completely resurfaced Patch, Cole Bank, Hauptman, Manor Lane, Arthur, Sunset Terrace, and Stoll Roads and resurfaced portions of Manorville, Plattekill, and Churchland Roads. The town also completed one major bridge repair on Kate Yaeger Road.

"The Republican candidate has said that he would solicit ideas and recommendations, especially from those with particular training and experience in road building and maintenance," commented Ferrara. "That is exactly what I have been doing over the past two years. Not only have I consulted both town and county experts in the road building business, but I have gone over Saugerties road problems in great detail with state experts," he said.

Ferrara then commented on the Republican candidate Joseph Mayone's statement that he would have available secretarial experience at no cost to the town. "Of course, he would not know this, but my wife, Joan, has been performing that service, also without cost to the town, over the past two years," said Ferrara. Ferrara promised to continue with his road construction program until all roads in the township were up to standard. "As the roads improve, we also create some new problems," he observed. "In some areas it is desirable to post lower speed limits where hazards could be created for children. I am endeavoring to co-operate with residents in such areas by applying to the state for reduced speed limits whenever it is desired by the residents," Ferrara concluded.

Smith Responds To Criticism

STONE RIDGE

Town Supervisor Kenneth Smith, responding to criticism of the town's landfill operation by his Democratic opponent Elsie Weglarz, said the Marletown landfill received an overall rating of "satisfactory" by the county department of public health after an inspection the morning of Oct. 24.

The inspection was conducted by Raymond J. Yesselman of the county board of health and covered more than a dozen areas of compliance.

The town did not get off entirely scot-free, Smith reported. Yesselman noted that the drainage provisions were not entirely satisfactory and ordered that the existing drainage trench be either enlarged or a pumping system set up to prevent pooling. Smith said the trench has been enlarged.

Smith also responded to criticism that there had been periods when the landfill was not properly equipped. Noting that there had been instances when the town's own equipment had been inoperable due to either vandalism (a frequent problem, says Smith) or because of unexpected failures, Smith insisted that the town had always had backup equipment, usually through short-term rentals.

Smith, a Republican, is seeking his third term in office while Mrs. Weglarz is making her first attempt at elective office.

Gilman Bill Seeks MIA Aid

WASHINGTON, D.C. Rep. Benjamin A. Gilman (R-26th Dist.), a member of the House Select Committee on Missing Persons in Southeast Asia, has introduced a resolution asking President Ford to seek the assistance of Red Chinese officials in accounting for American MIA's.

Congressman Gilman asked that Mr. Ford take the occasion of his forthcoming visit to the Chinese mainland to request officials to "use their good offices to obtain a full and complete accounting of those Americans who are still listed as missing in Southeast Asia."

"The President's forthcoming trip to China presents us with a unique opportunity to exert whatever influence we have with the Chinese," he said.

The upstate Republican explained that the proposal seeks to inject the MIA issue into our negotiations, giving the President a substantive issue to discuss with the Chinese.

"Our tragic involvement in Southeast Asia must not be put behind us until we have done all that is within our power to exhaustively determine the fate of our missing Americans."

"Without the cooperation of Hanoi, obtaining a final accounting of the fate of these Americans will be extremely difficult," Gilman stressed.

The legislation was referred to the House Committee on International Relations.

Medicare Limit Is Explained

KINGSTON There is a time limit within which a reimbursement claim must be filed under Medicare, the federal program which helps pay for the medical expenses of the aged and disabled.

George J. Habering, manager of the Kingston Social Security Office, explains that "Anyone who has medical insurance coverage under Medicare and who has medical bills of more than $60 during the last three months of 1973 or the first nine months of 1974 must submit these bills no later than Dec. 31, 1975, to receive payment. To avoid losing payment, Social Security urges you to review your medical bills. Any bills that have not been submitted should be filed with Medicare now at the address listed in your Medicare handbook for your area. Complete instructions for filing Medicare claims are contained in your Medicare handbook, copies of which can be had at the nearest Social Security office."

Golden Anniversary Celebration For Sisters Of St. Ursula

KINGSTON

The upcoming golden anniversary celebration of service of the Sisters of St. Ursula to the Kingston community gives rise to fond memories for many area residents.

The Celebration of Thanksgiving will be held Nov. 8. His Eminence Terence Cardinal Cooke will concelebrate the Mass at 12:30 p.m. at John A. Coleman High School. Following the liturgy, a brief program will be presented and tea served. Displays, tours and other activities are planned for the day. Graduates of the former Academy of St. Ursula and the present John A. Coleman High School will be in attendance.

The Sisters of St. Ursula came to Kingston in 1925 at the invitation of the Rev. Joseph Scully of St. Mary's Parish and established the Academy of St. Ursula and the Convent at Marygrove at the Grove Street site. Primary grades started Oct. 1 of that year for seven charter students.

It wasn't until 1928 that high school classes began at Marygrove.

In addition to staffing the Academy of St. Ursula the sisters also taught catechetical classes at Kingston Point and conducted parish religious education programs in Esopus, Glasco and East Kingston. In 1943, the Sisters of St. Ursula accepted the invitation to staff St. Joseph's School.

As the enrollment needs grew at the Academy, renovations and additions were necessary at the Grove Street facilities. In 1949 a new chapel was completed and in 1955, the late Francis Cardinal Spellman dedicated the new high school building.

The Academy provided education for the girls of the Kingston area for 43 years with approximately 800 students graduated from St. Ursula.

The Sisters summer home at Mt. Ave Maria, Phoenicia, was operated as a summer camp for underprivileged children from New York City from its acquisition in 1910 until Linwood, Dutchess County, was acquired in 1964.

The John A. Coleman Catholic High School for boys and girls opened at Marygrove in September, 1966 and moved to new facilities on Hurley Avenue in September of 1968.

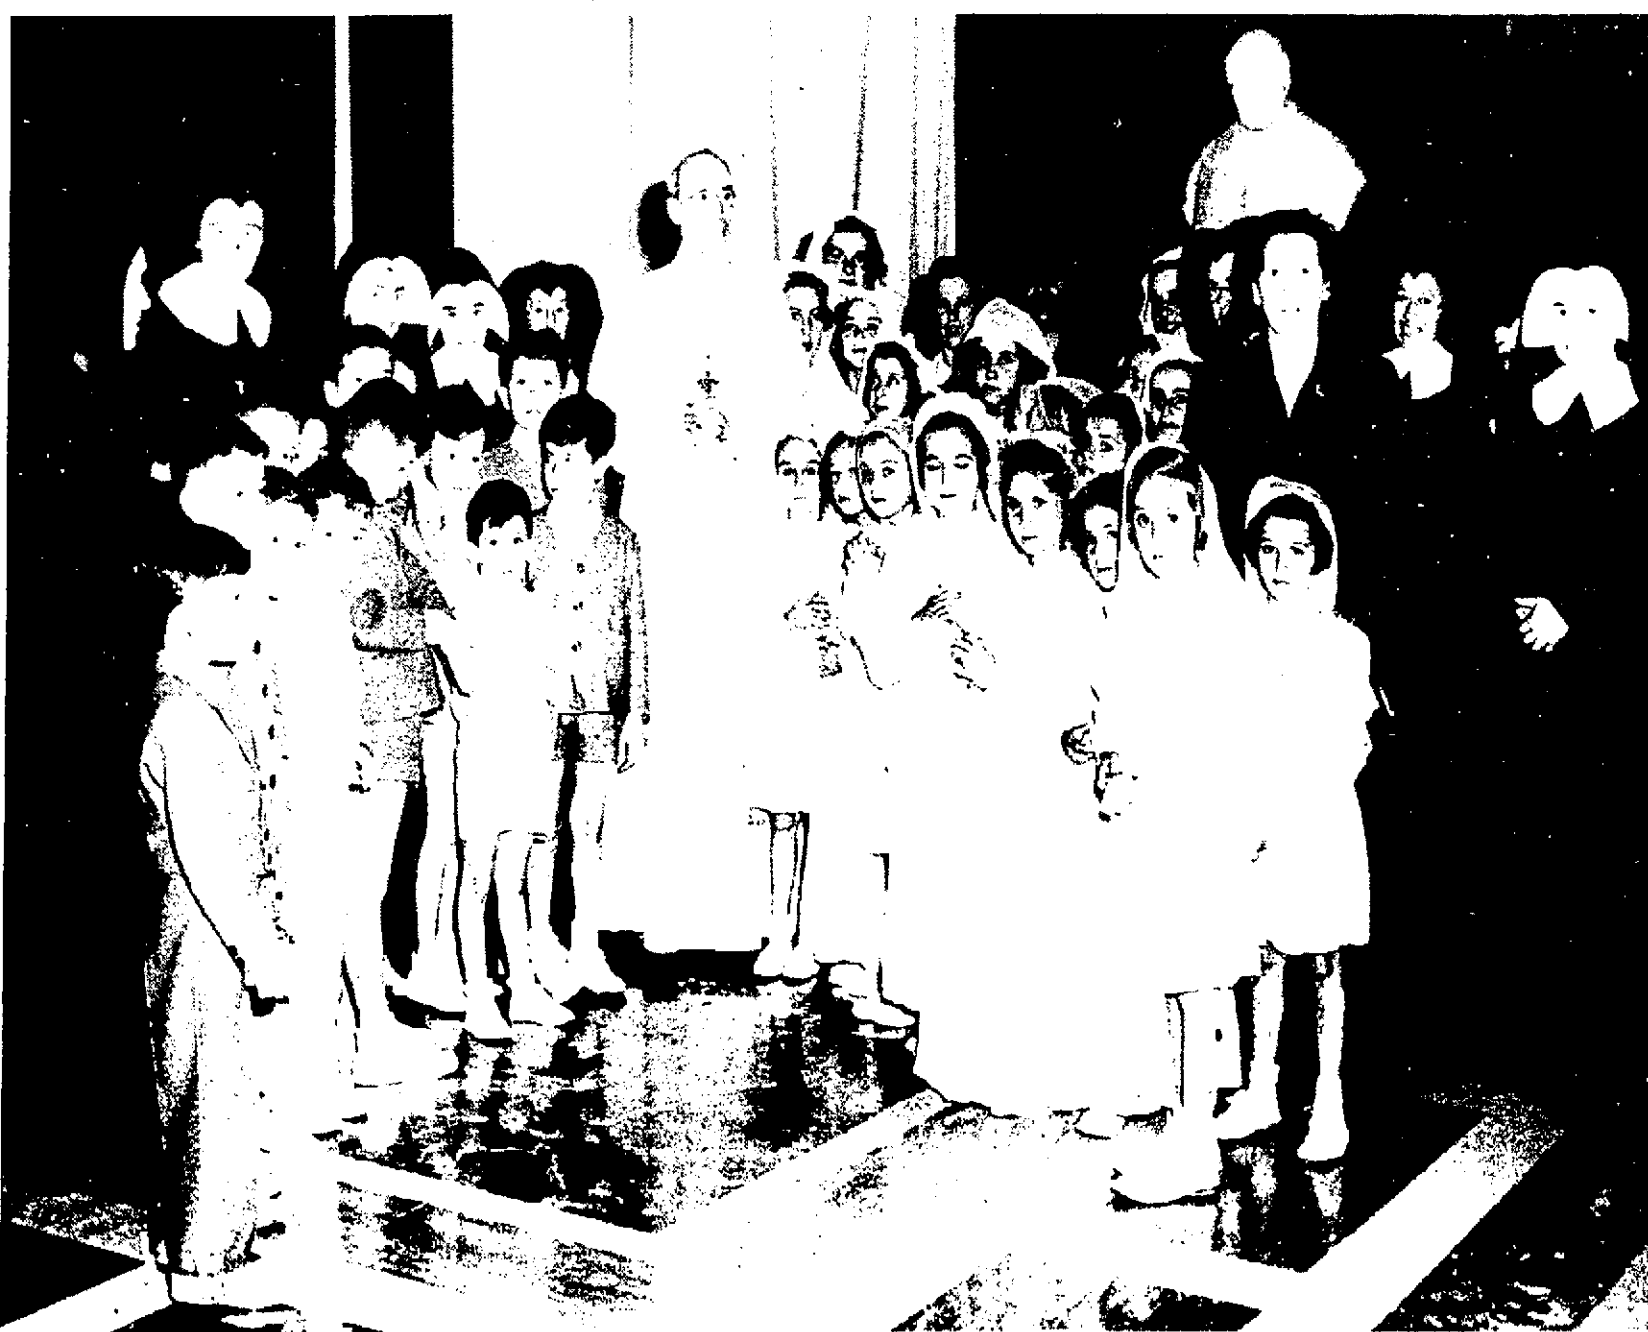

Many of the Coleman students are sons and daughters of Marygrove alumnae. Sister Catherine Gormley, principal, is a graduate of Marygrove as is Sister Catherine Keating, named district superintendent of Catholic Schools of Ulster and Dutchess Counties in September, 1974.

Festivities on Nov. 8 will revive memories of academy traditions and the many long years of service by the Sisters of St. Ursula in the area.

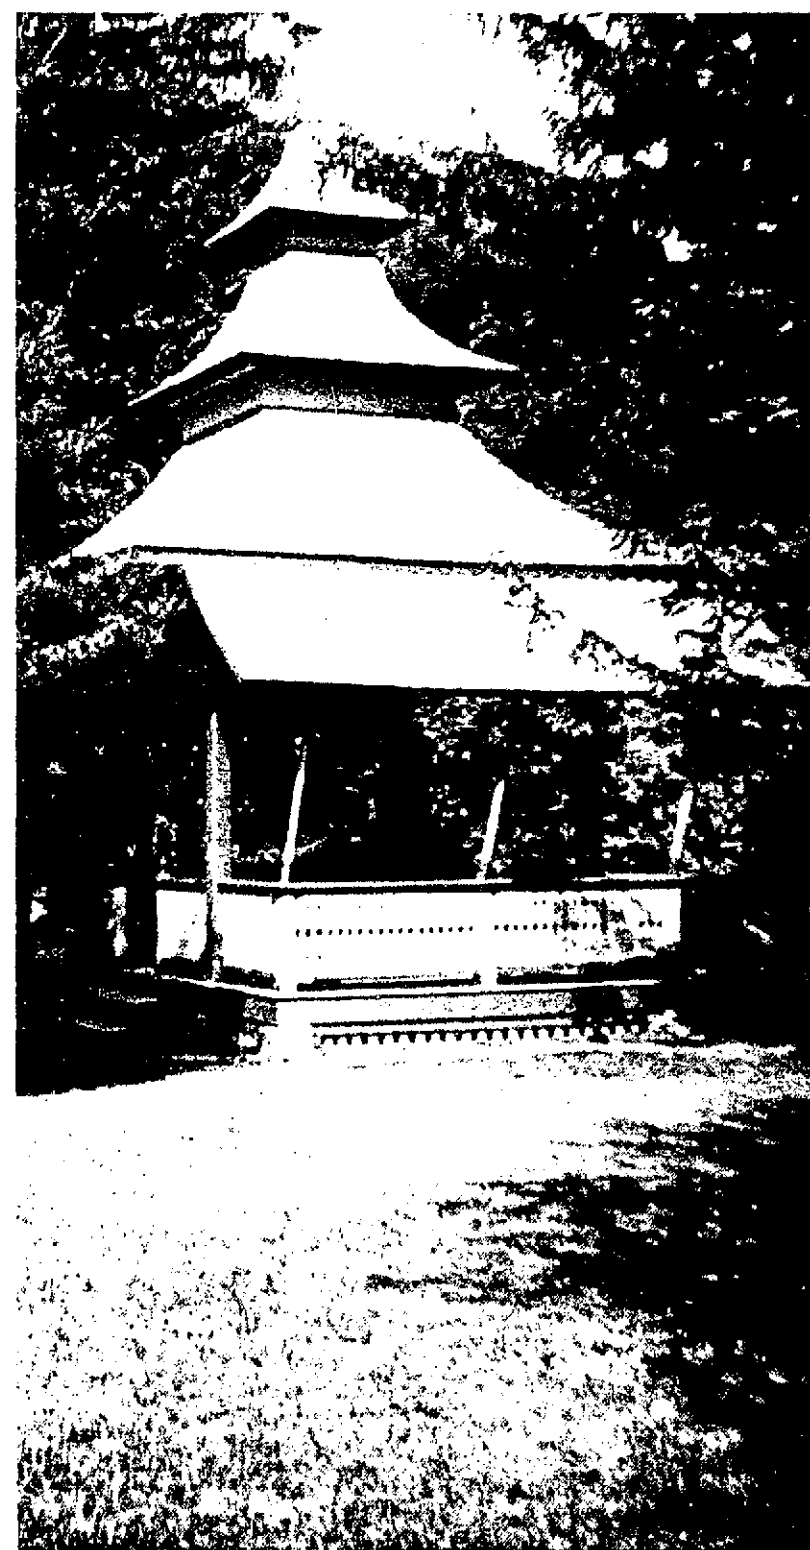

Roland A. Augustine is general chairman assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Seche and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Beckwith as program co-chairmen. Mrs. Jeffrey Fredenberg is reservations chairman.

Subscription Dance Series ... A First

POUGHKEEPSIE
The Hudson Valley Philharmonic and the Poughkeepsie Ballet Theatre are cooperating in a joint venture presentation of the first subscription dance series ever presented in the Poughkeepsie area.

Four companies are included in the season presentation — the Eglevsky Ballet Company in November, the Erick Hawkins Dance Company in February, the Poughkeepsie Ballet Theatre in March and the Alvin Ailey Repertory Workshop in April of 1976.

The Eglevsky Ballet will be at Poughkeepsie High School Sunday, Nov. 2, at 7:30 p.m., starring Ted Kivitt, principal dancer of the world-famous American Ballet Theatre.

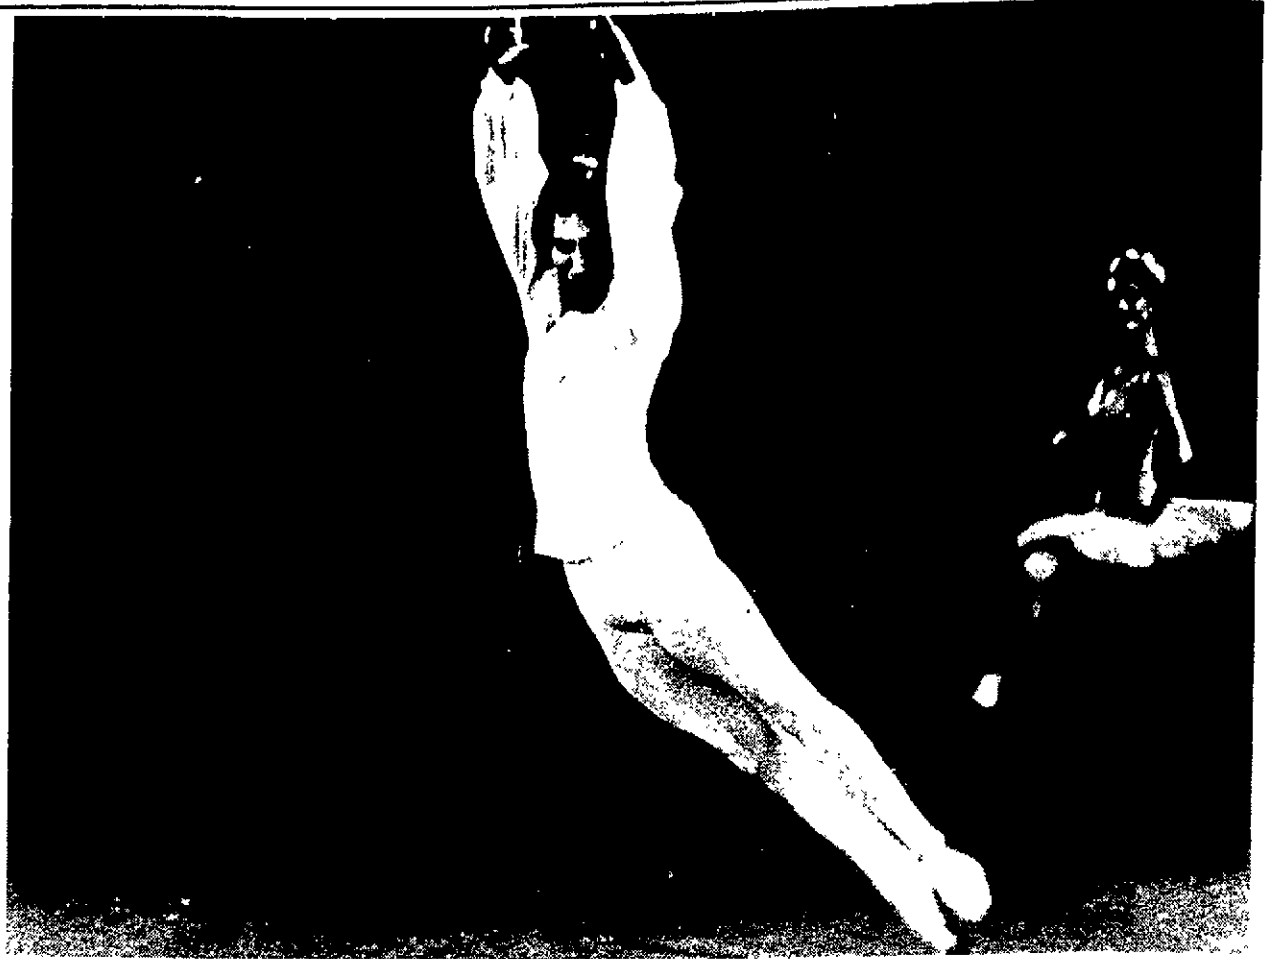

The Erick Hawkins Company in February will present the same critically acclaimed program presented with the Hudson Valley Philharmonic at Carnegie Hall.

Stravinsky's masterpiece, Les Noces, a contemporary dance work involving a large chorus and musicians, will be offered at the end of March 1976 by the Poughkeepsie Ballet Theatre, directed by Tom Adair.

And the final offering of this series will be the Alvin Ailey Repertory Workshop, presenting Ailey's most famous work, Revelations. This will be part of the concert scheduled for April.

Charter subscribers will be invited, without charge, to see dance films, including The Red Shoes; receptions to meet the performers and also to watch rehearsals.

Ticket and subscription information is available from the Hudson Valley Philharmonic office in Poughkeepsie.

IWY Observance at Paltz

NEW PALTZ
Music, art, crafts, literature, lectures, and panel discussions will be featured as the State University College at New Paltz observes International Women's year (IWY) with a series of programs during November and December, according to Prof. Usha Agarwal, coordinator of the IWY activities at the College.

The New Paltz observance, planned by a broadly based College-community committee, is part of a wider celebration of IWY by the entire State University of New York. All activities are open to the public.

Dr. Agarwal, a recognized scholar in the field of women's activities in the United States and in her native India, brings added status to the local program. She was selected as one of the participants in a symposium at the World Trade Center in New York City honoring United Nations Day and IWY.

The New Paltz computer

was one of six regional terminals accepting agenda suggestions for the symposium. The lists of women's concerns gathered this way, from college campuses and their surrounding communities, were fed into a central computer from which the final agenda was to be selected.

The local observance will begin Nov. 1 with the opening of an eight day exhibition of the works of women writers in the Sojourner Truth Library on the campus. The library, appropriately enough, is named for one of the early advocates of equal rights for women and blacks in the United States.

On Nov. 5, Srimata Gayatri Devi, spiritual head of the Vedanta Center of Boston and the Ananda Ashrama of San Francisco, will speak on the role of women in religion. She is the first Indian woman to represent Indian philosophy in the west as the leader of a religious organization. Her talk, sponsored by the College's East West Union, Asian studies department, and philosophy department will be at 7 p.m. in Dubois Hall.

Nov. 6 will be devoted to the IWY Fiesta and Bazaar in the Student Union Building (SUB). Three dance groups, led by Gloria Bonali, Susan Poretz, and Brenda Buffalino, will perform between noon and 3 p.m. Also starting at noon is the bazaar with crafts, a flea market and barter tables.

There will be 20 tables at the bazaar, and students interested in participating may still do so by contacting Cecile Ralph in the office of the College registrar.

"Women in the Afternoon" is the name of another program that day. It will feature readings, primarily by women, of works written by women, including prose, poetry, diaries, and other material.

The Bookbus will be on campus Nov. 6 and 7, parked outside the library with books, recordings, and journals by contemporary artists and an exhibit of books by women. All items in the "mobile bookstore" will be available for purchase.

Other IWY activities on the New Paltz campus will be announced.

Opening of New West Hurley Library Set for Saturday

Nancy Broughton and Virginia Rose, two of the many workers of the West Hurley Library, start the gigantic task of removing books for the move to the new library located on Clover Street.

WEST HURLEY
THE MOVE IS ON.
West Hurley Library trustees are currently receiving congratulations on the birth of its brainchild—a new library facility for use by residents of the community.

The old building, located on Route 28, had its demise Oct. 22 when it closed its doors for the last time.

And since then, friends of the library have been busy with packing, moving and then unpacking books.

All this is in preparation for the opening of the new West Hurley Library, located on Clover Street, which is set for November 1, with a formal dedication service scheduled to follow on November 16.

Mrs. Thomas Sherk, publicity chairperson for the West Hurley Library, reports that patrons of the library should be pleased to learn of the many advantages offered at the new site—the area of the building itself is more than three times that of the old library, offering adequate space for juvenile and adult book collections, as well as for reference areas and periodicals. Other new features include off-street parking, a librarian's workroom, washrooms and janitorial space.

And Mrs. Sherk adds that the potential for new and improved library services is great. A member of the Mid-Hudson Library System, West Hurley Library offers its patrons books, records, tapes and films. In addition, special programs have been offered to community residents for a number of years including a weekly pre-school Story Hour, a summer reading program for young people, film series and school assemblies.

"But in the past, limited space has meant limited services. All that is changed now. Ample space will be available for study or light reading," Mrs. Sherk concluded.

'Walks and Talks' Sunday

RHINEBECK
The second in a series of "Walks and Talks" sponsored by the Outdoor Education Advisory Committee of the Rhinebeck Central School is scheduled for Sunday, Nov. 2. This guided walk will be around the Thompson Pond Nature Preserve at the foot of Stissing Mountain in Pine Plains, beginning at 2 and concluding at 4 p.m.

The walk is open, without charge, to all residents of Rhinebeck and surrounding communities and will be led by Thelma Haight, chairperson of the Thompson Pond Committee.

The third session for November in the continuing program of outdoor education for the community will bring some of the outdoors indoors with "Arts and Crafts From Natural Materials" set for Sunday, Nov. 23, from 2 to 5 p.m. at the Chancellor Livingston School.

Interested persons may register for either or both of these programs by calling the Chancellor Livingston School.

'Don Juan in Hell' Slated at UCCC

STONE RIDGE
George Bernard Shaw's play, "Don Juan in Hell," will be performed at 8 p.m. Friday, Nov. 7, by Performing Arts of Woodstock in the Quimby Theatre on the Stone Ridge campus of Ulster County Community College.

Sponsored by the Student Government Organization at the college, the play is open to the public without charge.

"Don Juan in Hell" is the dream sequence from Shaw's play, "Man and Superman."

The director for the play is Paul Cooper, of Krumville, who also will play the role of The Statue. He directed previously at Pratt Institute and Hamilton College, and most recently directed Goethe's "Faust" for the Mid-Hudson Opera and "Hedda Gabler" for Performing Arts of Woodstock.

Playing Don Juan in the production will be Chet London, of Kerhonkson, who has appeared in roles on Broadway, off-Broadway, television and movies.

The role of the Devil will be played by John Lefever, of West Hurley, who won the best actor award at the New York State Theatre Festival.

Sara Mulligan, of Woodstock, will appear as Ana. She previously has performed at the Woodstock, Hyde Park and Phoenixia Playhouses and with the Coach House Players. She played a role in PAW's production of "Bricks," which won her a best actress award at a State Regional Theatre Festival held in Poughkeepsie last fall.

PAW Film Program Reopening This Sunday

WOODSTOCK
Performing Arts of Woodstock is reopening its three films program at Christ's Lutheran Church on the first Sunday of each month at 8 p.m. This Sunday, Nov. 2, the film of H.G. Wells' future world, "Things to Come," will be presented. Donations will be accepted at the door.

Decision-Making Seen As A Child's Right

DEAR ABBY: That letter on the "best kind of punishment" was interesting. Punishment is always destructive to a relationship. Just think about how you felt when you were punished.

In a well-functioning family, punishment is unnecessary. Parents respect their children's rights — such as the right to privacy and the right to make their own decisions. And children respect their parents' rights, such as the right to be free from worry about their children's safety at 2 a.m.

Children and parents concede these rights out of love and understanding, not fear or guilt. When those rights conflict, parents and children sit down and work out solutions that satisfy everyone.

Thus, relationships grow warmer and closer. That's what being a parent is all about.

JOY R. IN BEVERLY HILLS

DEAR JOY: You make it sound so super simple. Punishment may be unnecessary, but discipline is a must. Until children reach legal age, their parents are responsible for them, and parents who really love their children will give them guidelines.

I'm all for parents allowing their children to make their own decisions to a point. But while it's wise to let your child stub his toe to learn a lesson, would you let him break his neck if you could avert it?

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for 25 years, and if I thought my husband wanted another woman, I would hope that he'd be man enough to tell me. I would not want him in bed with me while his mind was on another woman.

How to you feel about it, Abby?

DAILY READER

DEAR READER: Same as you. But a man who would tell his wife that he'd rather be in bed with another woman is not only cruel; he's an idiot.

DEAR ABBY: We recently adopted a beautiful baby boy who is everything we had ever hoped for in a child.

We were married for 11 years before we accepted the fact that we weren't able to have children of our own, so we decided to adopt. I can't describe the happiness this child has brought into our lives.

Our lawyer advises us not to tell our son that he is adopted since all the records, including the birth certificate, show us as the baby's natural parents.

Abby, there are so many people in this town who know of the adoption, I don't see how we can keep the boy from finding out.

We got him when he was only 3-days-old. He is our child in every sense of the word, and we want him to feel that he is. Should we tell him he's adopted? And if so, when? We don't want him to hear it from anyone else.

NEW MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: I think your lawyer gave you very poor advice. Your son should be told that he was adopted as soon as he is able to understand what it means.

DEAR ABBY: My husband has some relatives who always leave the price tags on gifts they send to us and our children. I just can't understand it. The first thing I do when I buy a gift is to make sure the price tag is removed.

It can't be a coincidence that every gift that comes from these people has the price tag on it. Do you think it could be because they want us to know how much they have spent on us and want us to spend the same amount on them in return?

CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: I think you've come up with the answer. Ignore the hint and spend what you can afford — and continue to remove the price tags!

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Albany Antiques Expo

ALBANY Furniture offerings will include a Pilgrim joint stool, American-made in chestnut, a desk on frame circa 1870 and a Delaware Valley drop-leaf table of the same period. A Queen Anne highboy and other early 18th Century pieces will be on hand, along with formal furniture of the early 19th Century, Shaker items, "country" pieces and "primitives."

The semi-annual show and sale will bring together more than 100 outstanding dealers from the East and Middle West, who will offer choice antiques in virtually every category.

Show hours will be 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. Friday and Saturday, noon to 6 p.m. Sunday. Refreshments will be available throughout the show.

Election, Speaker for Art Group

KINGSTON Election of officers will take place during the Tuesday, Nov. 4, meeting of the Ulster County Art Association at the YWCA, 209 Clinton Avenue. The meeting will start at 7:30 p.m.

After the business meeting, Michal C. Roy of Kingston will give an exhibition of her work as a silversmith and talk about "Jewelry as an Art Form."

Ms. Roy has been a professional silversmith and designer for approximately six years, prior to which she concentrated her talents on painting. She studied painting at Dutchess County Community College and majored in art education at SUC, New Paltz. Prior to moving to Kingston, Ms. Roy operated Roycraft Studios in Cragmoor.

She is a member of the American Arts Council and an exhibition member of the Marbletown Artists Association.

"Trails End — Into the Sunset"

A One Act Playlet

The scene is in front of City Hall. The time is the day after election. Koenig and Darling are talking about the election night returns. Darling is saying: I really thought I would win because I spent a lot of money. You spent a bundle also Frank.

Frank says: Yup.

You tried to use all the State and Federal money spent in Kingston as credit for your good work, Darling said, but the people didn't buy it.

Frank replied: Yup.

Darling continues: You didn't reply to any issue Singer and I raised. All you said was you did all the good, but never admitted you had been wrong, even once. Don't you agree?

Frank grunts: Yup.

If you had explained where the dump was going, after 6 years, why no buses after 5 years, why no pool after 3 years, why no assessment corrections to lower taxes, that would have saved the taxpayers almost one million dollars, Darling said. You probably could have stopped Bernie. After those full page ads the last minute and the radio bombardment on election day — Koenig and Gallo, Koenig and Gallo, over and over again, I think you oversold your greatness. Don't you agree?

Koenig says: Yup.

Darling says: Here's Bernie and he is carrying a screw driver. What's the screw driver for Bernie?

Bernie smiles. I'm going to take the door off the Mayor's office. When I make a promise I keep it.

Iowa Test Results Revealing

KINGSTON

Children in grades four, five, and six in Kingston City Schools Consolidated are performing scholastically at the expected level, but they are expected to do a little better than average.

Those are two general conclusions drawn by district personnel based on results of the Iowa Tests of Basic Skills administered to about 850 students in the three grades last spring.

The Iowa Test are used principally to evaluate student performance in relation to results nationwide, indicating areas of relative strength or weakness in five generalized categories: vocabulary; reading comprehension; language; work study skills; mathematics; and a composite of all five.

The district analysis of results: (1) on the basis of the composite score Kingston is above the national norm in all three grades (by some two or three months); (2) all three grades show a similar pattern of relative strengths and weaknesses. For example, language and mathematics scores are consistently high and vocabulary, while still at or above the national norm, is relatively low. This level and pattern of achievement is very consistent with test results from past years.

Because scholastic aptitude plays a large role in academic achievement, the district undertook a further statistical analysis of these scores to determine if the children were working at their expected level, as aptitude tests indicate the average is slightly above the national average.

General conclusions were that (1) in relation to the national norm grades four, five, and six of the district perform slightly above and (2) in relation to aptitude, they are performing as expected.

Party Deplores Attempt

KINGSTON The Ulster County Conservative Party favors bankruptcy for New York City, and deplores the recent attempt to bail the city out with Teachers' Union retirement funds.

County Chairman Bill Jackson stated, "The bankruptcy of New York City is inevitable as a result of years of liberal policies and liberal politicians. The latest stop gap solution using the pension funds of the teachers is ill advised and could very well be unconstitutional."

"We find ourselves in a situation where even the Wall Street Journal states that the fiscal agony of New York City has gone so far that the only hope for a responsible and reasonably straight forward resolution is a voluntary bankruptcy," asserted Jackson.

Seeking to protect the state from being drawn into bankruptcy, don't let New York City fail, every other city in the state will demand equal financial support. If the federal government supports the city, it will end up controlling all the cities in the nation."

W. HOUSE
House Named Assistant

KINGSTON William House has been named assistant executive director of the Children's Home of Kingston, responsible for supervision of both the residential and day treatment programs.

House, a native of Waterloo, received his B.A. degree from Syracuse University and is completing his graduate studies in education at the State University College at New Paltz. In addition, he has been trained and certified as an ITPA examiner and is local educational advisor for a federal project which funds the music therapy program at the home.

He is a charter member of the Association of New York State Educators of the Emotionally disturbed, a member of the Personnel and Guidance Association of Ulster County, and serves on the Executive Committee for Education Directors in the New York State Council of Child Caring Agencies.

Executive Director Lawrence B. Siewers said: "Mr. House brings to his new position many years of experience in the care and treatment of emotionally disturbed children. Initially coming here as a child care worker in 1965, he has worked as a special education teacher, principal-teacher, and director of education."

Warren Tabbed

HURLEY

John R. Warren, president of the Hurley Heritage Society and consultant to the Kingston Bicentennial Commission, has been named to head Hurley's bicentennial commission.

He reported that it is expected the Hurley commission will cooperate with Kingston, especially in any events planned in observance of the burning of Kingston.

The town was first settled about 1661-62, according to Warren, and includes the old Hurley area designated as a National Historic Landmark with stone house architecture.

It served as General George Clinton's headquarters and as meeting place for the Committee on Safety following the Oct. 1, 1777 burning of Kingston by the British, in effect temporarily serving as state capital.

Hurley supervisor Raymond Crosswell with town board approval, appointed a 19-member commission to coordinate the celebration. The bicentennial group will organize at 7:45 p.m., Nov. 5 at Hurley Town Hall, Main Street, Hurley.

Montefusco Named NL's Top Rookie

NEW YORK (UPI) — John Montefusco, a colorful 25-year right-handed pitcher who is something of a throwback to the famous Dizzy Dean of the 1930s, today was named the National League's Rookie of the Year by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

The 6-foot-1, 180-pound native of Long Branch, N.J., edged out catcher-outfielder Gary Carter of the Montreal Expos by a 12-9 margin in voting by the BBWAA's committee of 24 writers. Larry Parrish of the Expos, Manny Trillo of the Chicago Cubs and Rawly Eastwick of the world champion Cincinnati Reds received one vote each.

Montefusco, nicknamed "The Count" by his teammates, enjoyed a rare moment of humility when advised that he had won the award.

"I don't want to kid around this time," said Montefusco, who during the season made such outrageous predictions as that he would strike out Johnny Bench four times in a game or shut out a given team. "I was looking forward to it. This caps the whole season for me."

Montefusco, whose predictions were greeted by teammates with the same tolerance of those of Dean with the old

St. Louis Cardinals, compiled a 15-9 record and 215 strikeouts this year. It was the most wins by a Giant rookie since "Mountain Music" Melton posted a 20-9 record as a rookie in 1937.

Montefusco's 215 strikeouts narrowly missed tying the NL rookie record of 227 set by Hall of Famer Grover Cleveland Alexander of the Philadelphia Phillies in 1911.

Montefusco was a shortstop in high school but was converted into a pitcher after the Giants signed him on the advice of scout Buddy Kerr following the 1973 draft. He had a 9-2 record at Decatur in 1973, won 15 games in the minors in 1974 and won three games for the Giants after being called up late in the season.

Montefusco pitched 244 innings, had a 2.88 earned run average which was seventh best in the league and pitched four shutouts.

Carter batted .270 with 17 homers and 68 RBI for the Expos; Eastwick saved 22 games for the Reds after being called up in June; Trillo batted .248 for the Cubs but delivered many game-winning hits and Parrish batted .274 with 10 homers and 65 RBI for the Expos.

Nationals Reject Designated Hitter

DORADO, P.R. (UPI) — Despite a plea from baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn to adopt the same procedure, the National and American Leagues went their separate ways Wednesday with regards to the designated hitter rule.

On the concluding day of a three-day meeting of the general managers from both leagues, the American League, which has been using the designated hitter for the last three seasons, voted to continue the practice while the National League said it would stay with the traditional rule of allowing pitchers to bat for themselves.

Kuhn took a neutral position on the issue but did urge the leagues to adopt the same practice.

Jim Toomey, the vicepresident of the St. Louis Cardinals who served as spokesman for the gathering, said that the general managers were all agreed that it would be better to have the same rule apply to both leagues, but neither league appeared ready to give in.

Toomey said that much of the three-day meeting was devoted to discussing possible recommendations to be discussed at the major leagues' winter meetings at Holmdel, N.J., in November. Toomey, however, declined to say whether he had any recommendations, which must first be taken up with the league presidents and other officials.

Toomey said one subject which was discussed, but not given any firm recommendation, was the possibility of extending the league playoffs from the current best-of-five series to a best-of-seven.

General managers also heard reports from John Gaherin, counsel for the Major League Players Association, and Rodrigo Otero Suro, president of the Latin American Winter League Association. Gaherin reported on the progress of current talks with owners, which are a preliminary stage, while Suro urged the general managers to establish closer relations with the Latin American League.

Selected as chairmen for next year's meeting were Clark Griffith, vice president and general manager of the Minnesota Twins, and Al Campanis, general manager of the Los Angeles Dodgers. Roland Hemond, general manager of the Chicago White Sox, and Eddie Robinson, general manager of the Atlanta Braves, served as chairmen for this year's meeting.

Rangers Show Some Life

NEW YORK (UPI) — "That was better," said New York Ranger Coach Ron Stewart. "We got a solid effort from all hands and checked much better."

Stewart, talking in the wake of the Rangers' 3-1 victory over the St. Louis Blues Wednesday night, still felt that this could improve on his club.

"We need more hitting and we need the forwards to come back the way the Pete Stankowski line did tonight."

Pat Hickey, the other member of the kid line, played with veterans Walt Tkaczuk and Bill Fairbairn and scored his second NHL goal.

Hickey's goal tied the score in the first period and offset an effort by he Blues' Chuck Lefley, who got his fourth short-handed goal of the year.

"I fanned on that shot," said John Davidson, the Rangers' goalie. "He put it in the corner on me."

Lefley took the puck at center ice and went over the blue line, firing a bullet from 55 feet out.

Park atoned by getting the winning goal in the second period. Before that Hickey had tied the score with a shot from the left faceoff circle. Park's goal was also a long shot fired from just inside the blue line after Polis dug the puck out at the corner. A third-period score by Rod Gilthert gave New York its insurance goal.

Garry Young, the Blues' coach, observed, "the Rangers were very high for this game. They have tremendous pride. After their slump, this could have been expected."

It certainly hasn't happened too often, but the Chicago Black Hawks won a hockey game Wednesday night on an empty-net goal.

The Black Hawks' Dale Tallon wasn't trying to score when suddenly he got the winning goal which gave the Hawks their first win over the Montreal Canadiens in two seasons—2-1.

Tallon's goal, which gave Chicago what looked to be an insurmountable 2-0 lead, came into an empty net with 1:08 to play Wednesday night after Montreal goalie Ken Dryden had been lifted in order to get another attacker on the ice and Montreal was pressing to tie the game.

"I hit it over to Dale," Pit Martin said, and Tallon added "it came to me in mid-air and fell at my feet. All I was trying to do was to get it out of our zone just far enough so there'd be no icing."

"Then I looked and it was going all the way down the ice but I thought it was a little to the right of the net. I was fortunate it went a little to the left and went in. I figured with my luck it would hit the post and stay on the line."

But the Tallon goal turned out to be the game-winner when Guy Lapointe scored the Canadiens' only goal with only 34 seconds to play.

Cliff Koroll got Chicago's first goal with a wrist shot with 11:01 remaining in the game.

"I thought it was a terrific game," Hawks' Coach Billy Reay said. "This one we won and I think we deserved to win because we had better opportunities."

Elsewhere in the NHL, Toronto edged Buffalo 3-2, Minnesota blanked Kansas City 2-0, and Detroit put away California 6-4.

Over in the WHA, Calgary stopped Cleveland 3-1, Cincinnati defeated Minnesota 6-4 and New England bested Quebec 4-2.

Red Wings 6, Seals 4

Mickey Redmond and Walt McKechnie had two goals apiece enabling the Red Wings to snap a 10-game winless streak. Detroit scored five times in the first period, but still needed Redmond's second goal in the final minute of the game to clinch the victory.

Maple Leafs 3, Sabres 2

The Leafs, paced by goals from Jim McKenny, Inge Hammarstrom and George Ferguson, snapped the Sabres' season-opening winning streak at eight. By stopping the Sabres, the Leafs preserved their own place in the NHL record book of eight straight opening season wins which is now just shared by Buffalo.

North Stars 2, Scouts 0

Goalie Pete LoPresti turned in a flawless performance while Bill Goldsworthy and Ernie Hicke added the goals to give the North Stars their shutout over Kansas City. LoPresti turned aside all 24 Scouts' shots, to record his first shutout of the season and second of his NHL career.

WHA

Left wing Ron Climie scored his third and fourth goals—both in the third period—to lead New England to its win over Quebec... A power play goal by Brian Campbell plus a short-handed tally from Bernie MacNeil started the Stingers off on their triumph over the Minnesota Fighting Saints are still winless at home this year... Breakaway goals by Hugh Harris and George Morrison in the third period carried Calgary to victory over Cleveland.

Rozelle: Anti-Blackout Law Cost NFL Owners $9 Million

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Commissioner Pete Rozelle told Congress today that the antiblackout television law has cost National Football League owners more than $9 million during the last two seasons and threatens to erode fan and financial support in the future.

Rozelle, in a prepared statement for a House Commerce subcommittee hearing, also disputed reports by the Federal Communications Commission that the ban on local blackouts of sold-out sports events has had no significant impact on pro football.

In assailing the legislation enacted in 1972, he declared: "The already experienced decrease in season ticket sales has meant more than $8.4 million in lost revenue to the member clubs for the 1974 and 1975 seasons. Together with the losses in game program sales and the decrease in the value of radio rights, the member clubs have sustained losses of more than $9 million."

Rozelle was waging an uphill fight against a proposed bill by Rep. Torbert MacDonald, D-Mass., chairman of the subcommittee, which would make it permanently illegal for any pro sports league to prohibit the local area showing of a contest sold out in advance.

The three-year tryout of the anti-blackout law expires Dec. 31. Before it went on the books, the NFL barred showing any pro football game into a home team's local market area.

Rozelle opposed even a temporary extension of the law as suggested by pro hockey and basketball spokesmen Wednesday.

"The 1975 season to date has resulted in the fewest number of sold-out games since 1970," he testified. "Prior to the enactment of the law, the trend was in the opposite direction. In our judgment, the law is progressively eroding season ticket buying interest. In many NFL cities, fans are waiting to see if the games will be sold out and locally televised."

The commissioner challenged reports by the Federal Communications Commission that the blackout ban has been less of a factor in the growing number of pro football "no shows" than bad weather and poor team performance and that non-attendance by fans has had little economic repercussion.

Rozelle told the House panel: "In the 1972 season...before the law was enacted, there were 624,686 'no shows' within the NFL. With the requirement of local televising of sold-out games, the 1974 season produced 1,124,162 'no shows.' Our concern about 'no shows' is that they become non-fans."

Of the increase in "no shows" under the law, he said: "That the principal cause for this tremendous increase is the local televising of sold-out home games is obvious. These statistical figures were available to the FCC; the authors of the report simply did not choose to make use of them."

Rozelle noted that there has been a decrease of 150,674 season ticket sales since 1973 and declared: "Fifty-five percent of the total decrease comes from teams who had regularly televised their home games during the 1973 and 1974 seasons." He also cited a $500,000 loss in radio revenues under the law plus other dwindling moneys from diminishing parking charges and other concessions.

In opposing any continuation of the law, Rozelle summarized: "We believe that the harm to professional football is already apparent and that these effects will become progressively more obvious as the years pass."

Monaco Heads Fight Card

Promoter Joe Garfield staged the city's first professional boxing card in more than 20 years last April in the Municipal Auditorium. It wasn't much in the way of a comeback, strictly a one-shot deal.

Now Kingston-based, the veteran New York promoter returns Friday, Nov. 21, with a stand-out 42-round show he hopes will be the first in a series of monthly boxing programs at the hallowed auditorium where world champions like Sugar Ray Robinson, Lew Ambers, Melio Bettina and Marty Servo once cavorted.

Heading the seven-bout card will be a 10-round lightweight feature between Domenico Monaco of Brooklyn and Louis Vega of Puerto Rico.

The eight-round semi-final between welterweights Tyrone Phelps of New York and Lloyd Richardson of Buffalo, is a rematch of a recent bout between these two fighters that attracted national attention. Phelps was married in the ring before the bout.

"The main bout has two of the finest young lightweights in the business," said Garfield at a press conference Wednesday announcing the card and the formation of an organization known as Kingston Promotions, Inc. to promote boxing here on a regular basis.

According to the Ring Boxing Encyclopedia, Monaco is in his third year as a professional. In 1973 and 1974, he compiled a record of 15 wins in 17 bouts, including eight knockouts, six decisions and a draw. He has lost twice.

"Monaco is a definite lightweight championship prospect," Garfield declared. "He has made appearances in Madison Square Garden and the Felt Forum and is on his way up. Vega should make a fine opponent and I think this will be a terrific bout."

Other bouts on the card:

John Turner, Long Island, vs. Rinaldo Burgos, Conn., 6, rounds, 117 pounds.

Vince Pavon, Staten Island vs. Randy Milton, Conn., 117 pounds, 6 rounds.

Roberto Castro, Puerto Rico, vs. Bill Kolowaski, Erie, Pa., heavyweights, 4 rounds.

Another "surprise bout" will be announced

Board Meeting

Doug Jarrett (L) of the Rangers grapples with Pierre Plante of St. Louis during NHL game Wednesday night. Linesmen coming in to break things up are Ryan Bazak (33) and John D'Amico (9). Both players got five-minute penalties for fighting. Rangers won, 3-1. (UPI)

Pistons' Plan Worked

The plan was to make Kareem Abdul-Jabbar chase Bob Lanier for a change. It worked.

Lanier and the Pistons, their fast-break offense working like an alternating current, jolted Abdul-Jabbar and the Los Angeles Lakers, 112-99, Wednesday night in Detroit's seasonopener at home.

The Pistons even won the battle of the gate with the Detroit Red Wings for a change, their sellout crowd of 11,176 bettering the hockey team's attendance total by 2,551 as both teams played at home on the same night.

Lanier put in a whopping 41 points against Abdul-Jabbar, who scored 30 and equalled the Detroit center's total of 16 rebounds.

"I know coming in I have to play defense against Kareem," Lanier said later, both his knees covered with ice encased in an elastic bandage while he sat on the floor. "But I have to make him play defense, too."

"Those little dudes—especially Kevin Porter—make it a lot easier, zooming the ball up," he said. "You get a lot easier shots."

"That's about the best I've seen Lanier play," Coach Bill Sharman of the Lakers said. "They 'changed ends' (went from offense to defense) well and their fast-break was good. They didn't look so good at setting the ball up."

"Bob and I went up to see Milwaukee play Boston (two years ago in the playoffs) and we saw that's how Boston beat them. (Center Dave) Cowens made Jabbar chase him," Coach Ray Scott of the Pistons said. "It cuts down his effectiveness when he has to chase Bob."

Detroit used its fast-break to rattle off 12 successive points in a 2-49 stretch of the first quarter, opening a 15-14 edge into a 27-14 lead that it pretty much maintained the rest of the way.

The Boston Celtics defeated the Golden State Warriors 115-106 and the Seattle SuperSonics beat the Kansas City Kings 92-91 in other National Basketball Association games.

In the American Basketball Association it was St. Louis 104 Virginia 100, Denver 122 Utah 117, Indiana 105 San Diego 100 and New York 112 San Antonio 99.

Dunk Leads Australian Open Golf

SYDNEY (UPI) — Australian golfer Billy Dunk broke the course record with a 7-under par 65 today to take a one stroke lead after the first round of the $44,100 60th Australian Open Golf Championship at Kensington.

Dunk led little known American Fred Clark of Buffalo, N.Y., and local amateur Eric Cooper, who had 66s, and was two strokes ahead of Jack Nicklaus and Rodger Davis.

Sharing sixth spot on 68 were American John Tropeel and a local trio, Peter Croker, Bruce Boyle and Stewart Ginn.

South African Gary Player, seven times a winner of this tournament, was disappointed with his 71 on a day that was perfect for low scoring.

"I didn't play all that well.

I hit 15 greens in the regulation number of strokes but I didn't hit the ball all that sharply," Player said.

Player, who has been plagued by threats of anti-apartheid demonstrations, was accompanied on his round by uniformed police but no demonstrations took place.

Dunk was superb as he strung together seven birdies and 11 pars to break David Graham's course record by one stroke.

Sydney has never seen a bigger first day gallery than the unruly 7000 that spilled on to the course to see Nicklaus do his stuff.

And Nicklaus, a three-time winner of the Australian Open, didn't disappoint them as he strung together four birdies in five holes on the front nine and a further three birdies on the run home.

He had nine one-putt greens and holed birdie putts from 25 feet at the fourth, 12 feet at the seventh, 10 feet at the eighth, 20-footers at the 12th and 15th and 18 feet at the 16th.

"My putting was quite good," Nicklaus laughed.

Clark, a 26-year-old club pro, was financed by a hometown group.

"Twenty five members from the Country Club of Buffalo, where I'm an assistant pro, bought shares to send me," Clark said.

He hit some incredible putts during a round which included six birdies and an eagle three at the 17th, where he knocked in a long 40-footer.

Sunday Racing Canceled

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Racing Association has canceled Sunday racing for the rest of the season, effective immediately.

The move to racing on Sunday was originally experimental in nature, so the NYRA merely said Wednesday it was discontinuing the experiment. However, declining Sunday attendance coupled with the added labor costs was known to be behind the decision.

Belmont Park, the site of current thoroughbred action in the area, will revert to a Monday-to-Saturday schedule through Nov. 8.

Aqueduct Race Track will open Nov. 10, with no racing from Dec. 24 through Jan. 1. The track was originally slated to open Oct. 22, but labor trouble concerning the winterization of the Aqueduct plant delayed the opening for almost three weeks.

Kingston vs. Saugerties . . . Only Pride Is At Stake

Ira Fufeld

SAUGERTIES

About the best thing you can do to build up Saturday's fourth annual varsity football meeting here between Kingston and Saugerties High Schools is simply to say that, yes, it is Kingston vs. Saugerties. That should be enough to get the old rivalry going.

Aside from the natural rivalry angle, it's hard to avoid taking it that neither team is particularly strong this year and that win will provide the conqueror some personal satisfaction and the loss.

In fact, for the second straight year, one of the teams is new and the other isn't doing all that much better. This year, though, it's Saugerties on the bottom of the pack, obviously hoping to salvage something out of a dismal season by capturing the mythical title awarded to Ulster County's champions in the Dutchess County Scholastic League.

"They're going to be sky-high," KHS coach Tony Badalato said. "This is their season right here."

Not so sure is Sawyer coach Fred Seither. "I really can't say whether they'll be up or not. They're the only ones who can determine that. There's no question though that it would be a tie to beat Kingston even though one game doesn't mean that much."

Saugerties hasn't played since a week ago Monday. The time pressure has given the Sawyers ample opportunity to contemplate their 0-4-1 record and to consider what the Kingston game means to them.

Badalato feels the layoff will help Saugerties. "They've had two weeks to prepare," he noted. "We played Roosevelt once after they had two weeks off and they changed their entire offense on us. Fred usually doesn't do something like that, but then again you never know. He might change a series and we've got to be looking for it."

Seither, however, indicates Badalato's worries are unfounded. "We won't do anything different," he said. "Maybe I'm getting old."

What it all comes down to for the Sawyers is the knowledge that very little has worked for them this year. They got off to a poor start at Lourdes, appeared to be coming around a little against Poughkeepsie and Ketcham (earning only a loss and a tie), and fell back again with one-sided losses to Roosevelt and John Jay. When Seither says he isn't trying anything different, he doesn't mean in terms of personnel because he has been continually moving bodies around in hopes of discovering a winning combination.

And while the offense has been nothing to brag about, it's the defense that has Seither bothered so much that as late as Wednesday he still didn't know who he was going to use where. "They've (the opposition) been going right through us," he sighed when discussing the problem.

Adding to Seither's woes is an injury to halfback Jim Marino one which could prove serious enough to shelve him not only for this game but for the rest of the season. That thins an already shallow offensive backfield, and it leaves a huge hole in the defensive secondary.

Injuries also have depleted Kingston (2-3-1). Two more players, both important ones, were added to the hospital list this week as "Monster Man" linebacker Jeff Lucas suffered a concussion and offensive guard Ricky Smith reinjured an ankle. With that duo out, tackle Phil Razy still trying to recover from a pre-season leg injury, and offensive lineman Lou Themistocles again doubtful this week, Badalato has to do some shuffling as well.

"We're really hurting for depth," he said. Fortunately for him, however, Walt Bachsnagel, Themistocles' replacement last week, and John O'Meara, who will fill in for Smith, have experience. Unfortunately, Joel Etter, Lucas' backup, hasn't seen nearly as much game time in the Monster spot.

Another move Badalato is making, this one by choice, is starting quarterback Bruce Schackenberg over Joe Kivlan. The two have shared the job most of the season, but the last few weeks Kivlan was the No. 1 man.

"Bruce looked good in the second half against Poughkeepsie last week," Badalato explained. "Against Saugerties I'm looking for someone with more mobility. Saugerties is a big team and I want to get more quickness in the lineup."

As was the case in that muddy 6-6 tie with the Pioneers, KHS' running backs will move in and out of the game. When Kingston is in the power triangle, Bruce Churchwell will be joined by Rich Knox and Etter. It will be Churchwell, Etter, and Tom Brown in the I.

"Again this week we have to keep the ball to be effective," Badalato reflected. "The defense looked good against Poughkeepsie. They're capable of playing sound ball, but they're also capable of goofing up, mainly because we've used a lot of people there. It's an unpredictable unit."

It is likely that both teams will be up for this game. But with the obvious shortcomings of the two clubs so very evident, the winner will undoubtedly be the team that makes the fewest mistakes. The game means nothing except to the players, coaches, and fans of the two schools. That should be enough to insure a fourth consecutive emotional struggle worth the price of admission.

EXTRA POINTS — A moment of silence in memory of the late Mike Bond is tentatively planned before the opening kickoff. Bond, a 1971 Saugerties graduate who played varsity football here and then at Ithaca College, was killed in an upstate automobile accident Monday . . . The traditional post-game ceremonies for this series will be continued with the mothers of the senior players receiving flowers at mid-field . . . The last time Kingston met Saugerties here, a set of bleachers was transported from Dietz Stadium to handle the overflow crowd. But that was a season-fine, when the bleachers were no longer needed at Dietz. That not being the case this year, Saugerties officials are doing the best they can to handle the expected SKO gathering . . . In other DCSL games Saturday, Roosevelt is at Poughkeepsie, Beacon visits Arlington, and Ketcham goes to John Jay.

'Soccer Gods' Were With UCCC

"You could say the soccer gods were with us," chuckled Ulster County Community College coach George Vizvary Wednesday following a 0-0 tie with Nassau.

"For the first time since I've been coaching soccer I have to say we lucked out," conceded Vizvary. "It was a miracle of the lords."

Despite holding the statistical edge on Nassau, Vizvary said the Long Islanders outplayed his Senators. "They were the best team I've seen this year. They came at us with speed, technique and a determination to win."

But Nassau failed on several sure scoring chances, some created by the sloppy play of UCCC's halfbacks and fullbacks, leaving goalie Leo Lynch virtually all alone. Also hurting the Senators was the physical status of Segundo Zapater, who is still not at full strength following an injury he suffered last week.

Nevertheless, Ulster escaped without a loss and still has not dropped a game to a Region XV opponent this year. The Senators are 4-0-3.

"It was a game that taught us a lesson," said Vizvary of the contest not originally

With the Region XV tournament set for Nov. 11, UCCC first meets Kingsborough on the road Saturday, then goes to Sullivan Tuesday for an important Mid-Hudson Conference tilt. The Senators are at Manhattan on Nov. 8.

KHS Nips Spackenkil, 2-1

SPACKENKILL

Kingston High School's varsity soccer team completed its DCSL season Wednesday with a 2-1 victory over Spackenkil in what Coach Ron Chaisson called the Tigers' "finest game of the year."

The win lifted KHS' record to 8-5 in the league. That puts Kingston alone in third place pending today's season finale at Ketcham for Rhinebeck, which now is 7-5. Arlington won the championship with an 11-1-1 record. Defending champion Roosevelt was 11-2.

Kingston, which meets in a 2:30 p.m. Section One playoff game got a pair of goals from Emil Jordan, his 10 and 11th of the season, to dump the Spartans. Paul McGrath's goal for Spackenkil came after KHS had the game cinched and Chaisson had inserted his reserves.

The KHS coach praised Jordan, center back Tim Dell, wingers Eric Schreiner and Grth Galyon, and sweeper Danny Perkins for their efforts.

Series Highlights

Highlights of the Kingston-Saugerties football series:

1972
At Dietz Stadium—Saugerties 20, Kingston 6 — Jim Whitford scored on runs of 31 and two yards for the Sawyers and John Lechner ran 67 yards with a Kingston fumble for another Saugerties TD. KHS scored on Kim Nicholas' 45-yard interception return.

1973
At Saugerties—Kingston 18, Saugerties 0 — Raymond Gay, an all-league defensive back, started at quarterback in a surprise move by Kingston coach Tony Badalato. Gay scored two touchdowns (26 and six yard runs) and threw a TD pass of 30 yards to Steve Mihic.

1974
At Dietz Stadium—Saugerties 17, Kingston 7 — Touchdowns by Mike Tiano and Nick Malgieri and a 21 yard field goal by Tom Abate lifted the Sawyers to their second straight Dietz win over the Maroons

Highland Aims to Scramble Standings

By Steve Kane

KINGSTON The UCAL's football standings are a mess these days, but Highland High's Lem Atkins isn't satisfied with that. "If we win it," he said looking ahead to Saturday's showdown with Rondout, "we scramble things up. That's what we're trying to do — make it interesting."

As if a league with six teams still alive isn't interesting enough already. The rest of the schedule has Pine Bush and New Paltz in another key battle, Red Hook playing host to Onteora, Liberty visiting Walkkill and Ellenville at Marlboro.

One of the things that has contributed to a tight race is that four teams, Rondout, Walkkill, New Paltz and Liberty, have only played six games. Everybody else has played seven. Rainouts are the reason for that, and both Atkins and his counterpart, Mickey Million, know that rain could continue to be a factor. Both coaches will have an eye on the sky Saturday. Atkins would love to see a sunny day and a nice dry field. Million isn't sure what he'd like.

"I don't know how good we are on a dry field," Million said. The Ganders have waded through the mud for the past three weeks in a style that has brought them to the top of the league with a 5-1 record. In the wet RVC was good and got better.

"If you're big (and Rondout is), you have an advantage on a wet field," Million continued. "I'm pleased with our offense so far, but we haven't been able to throw the ball."

So while nobody likes to play in the rain, Rondout might feel a little more confident if it came to that Saturday. In any case the Ganders will be looking for a tough contest.

"They beat Walkkill and we didn't," Million cautioned. "Besides that, Lem gets people worked up."

Atkins would like a dry day because his team is not so big. Last week, when the Blue dropped its second game in seven starts, that setback came to another physical team, Pine Bush, on a very muddy field, and that combination was a big part of the reason why.

"We're better on a dry field. We do more things. Hell, their starting quarterback is bigger than anybody on our team," Atkins said.

But this year Highland has resisted any kind of conformity. It has scored points when it wasn't supposed to, and it humiliated a strong Walkkill team defensively, also when it wasn't supposed to.

Nebraska Slim Pick Over Missouri

By JACK SAUNDERS
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Odds-makers figured last week's Nebraska-Colorado matchup in Lincoln, Neb., would be pretty close. They were wrong. They could be wrong about the Cornhuskers again.

Nebraska entered the game unbeaten at 6-0; Colorado was 5-1 with only a missed kick against Oklahoma costing it an unbeaten record. Although Nebraska's defense looked better, the eight-point spread seemed to be about right, with a fair possibility the Buffs could win.

Wrong. Nebraska rolled up nine touchdowns en route to its 63-21 laughter; two of Colorado's three TDs came late in the game after the outcome had been long decided.

Now the 'Huskers, taken for real, travel to Missouri to take on another good, solid football team. The Tigers' 5-2 club has already beaten Alabama and Oklahoma State. But they showed a scoring weakness against Michigan and Colorado and are nowhere nearly as impressive on defense.

Yet Nebraska is now a six-point choice. If Al Onofrio's club can keep it this close, much less win outright, it will be the first time since the Cornhuskers' first win against LSU that Nebraska hasn't won by more than a touchdown.

Georgia Tech 30 Duke 14—Blue Devils impressive in ACC but no match for 5-2 Tech.

Kentucky 21 Tulane 17—Despite 1-5-1 records Wildcats have lost none by more than eight points and are home in bid to keep Fran Curci's job.

Penn State 20 Maryland 10—Despite Terps' week layoff, a reaffirmation that Nittany Lions best team in this part of the country.

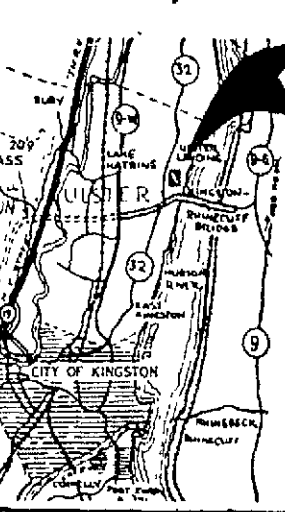

Alabama 35 Mississippi State 7—It's blowout time in Jackson, Miss.

LSU 17 Mississippi 16—Not a powerhouse game but both team trying for .500 record.

new outdoor volume—Guide to the Catskills — to your library shelf.

The creation of a quartet of authors — Arthur Adams, Roger Coco and Harriet and Leon Greenman — it represents 440 pages of the most exhaustive study ever made of the Catskill Mountains. It is packed with maps, trail guides and just about every bit of information about the area ever assembled in one volume.

It is a hiker's delight, describing in detail every trail in the region. If you didn't know, you are reminded that the Catskills have 98 peaks that are over 3,000 feet, with Slide Mountain at 4,180 feet the highest and Hunter Mountain second at 4,040 feet.

The Guide reveals that the Catskill Mountains are geologically referred to as an "eroded plateau" but is the largest area of this type in North America.

The Guide is divided into several sections which describe in detail everything the Catskills has to offer the hunter, hiker and outdoor man. Among the sections are: the mountains, trails, trail description, the best photo equipment to use on hikes, how to avoid and treat accidents, camping, bicycling, hunting, winter activities, waters, fishing, canoeing, boating, the geological evolution of the Catskills, occupation (Indian and Dutch), post revolution development.

Also listed are sections dealing with the romantic period (artists and writers); the gilded period (Catskill Mountain House), railroads, legends and personalities, facts, fiction and confusion, history recalled, covered bridges and accommodations.

About the Catskill waters, the authors say: "Most hunters, fishermen and hikers and backpackers know that by following a stream or brook they will eventually arrive at a village. Most of the villages of the Catskill are along side streams and auto routes follow major streams and rivers as did the now abandoned railroads.

The extras include stunning photographs of famed Catskill mountain hostels and houses like the Mountain House, Grand Hotel at Highmount, The Hotel Kaaterskill on South Mountain; Tremper House in Phoenicia, Overlook House in Woodstock; Guigou House in Pine Hill and Palace Hotel in Shandaken.

Anyone born or raised or living in the Catskill Mountain area will not want to go without this superb edition. It is available in some sporting goods stores for $6.95 or from Walking News, Inc., P.O. Box 352, New York, N.Y. 10013.

Air Crash Kills Estimated 60

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (UPI)—A chartered Yugoslav jet plane with 120 passengers and crew crashed while approaching Prague airport in fog today.

The plane was carrying 115 passengers and a crew of five. A Czech airline spokesman said 60 persons were killed. (The Yugoslav news agency Tanjug in Belgrade gave unconfirmed reports of the number of survivors at between 15 and 60.)

The DC9 of the Inex Adria charter airline crashed in fog while bringing Czech trade union members and their families home from vacation in Yugoslavia.

It went down the northeastern section of Prague in the district of Sedlec near a large hotel.

Details of the crash were given by the Czech airline CSA.

A CSA spokesman said the aircraft had been chartered by the Czech trade union in the Yugoslav city of Lubljana to bring vacationers home.

The plane crashed into a plot of small gardens about 1 1/2 miles from the Hotel International.

The trade union members had spent their vacation on the seacoast in the Yugoslav province of Dalmatia.

The Czech airline spokesman said some of the survivors were in critical condition.

The last previous crash of a Yugoslav plane was in September 1973 when a Yugoslav JAT DC9 went down at Titograd, Southern Yugoslavia, killing all 41 persons aboard. It was Yugoslavia's worst air disaster on a domestic flight.

In January 1972 a JAT DC9 exploded over Czechoslovakia, killing 27 persons. Yugoslav stewardess Vesna Vulovic was the only survivor.

Yugoslavia's worst air disaster was in May 1971 when a Yugoslav chartered Avioenex TU134A jetliner crashed at the Rijeka airport on the northern Yugoslav Adriatic island of Krk. Seventy-two British tourists and six Yugoslavs perished in the crash while five persons survived.

PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION
ALBANY
CASE 26798—Petition of Empire State Power Resources, Inc. for authority to issue and sell up to 2,000 shares of Capital Stock, and of certain electric companies for authority to acquire such stock.

October 15, 1975
NOTICE is hereby given that a hearing will be held in the above matter before Examiner Edward L. Block at the office of this Commission, Two World Trade Center, New York, N. Y., on Wednesday, November 12, 1975, at 11:00 a.m.

This hearing is being held primarily for the purpose of (1) receiving oral statements from members of the public, (2) adopting the petitioners' sworn testimony and exhibits which have been pre-filed with this Commission, and (3) reviewing the status of requests for information. The material pre-filed by the petitioners is available for inspection at the offices of this Commission, World Trade Center, Tower II, New York City, and at 44 Holland

Legal Notice
Avenue, Albany, N. Y.
Empire State Power Resources, Inc. (ESPRI) is an electric corporation organized under the Transportation Corporation Law by seven electric corporations in this State ("the Sponsors") to acquire, construct, own and/or operate large-scale electric generating facilities. ESPRI seeks authority under Section 69 of the Public Service Law to issue and sell up to 2,000 shares of capital stock at a price of $1,000 per share. The Sponsors (Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation, Consolidated Edison Company of New York, Inc., Long Island Lighting Company, New York State Electric & Gas Corporation, Niagara Mohawk Power Corporation, Orange and Rockland Utilities, Inc. and Rochester Gas and Electric Corporation) petition under Sections 70 and 107 of the Public Service Law for authority to purchase and acquire up to 2,000 shares of capital stock of ESPRI.

EESPRI proposes to construct approximately 18,600 megawatts of new generating capacity during the period 1980-1991, as detailed in the petition. It is anticipated that the Sponsors will purchase substantially all of the capacity available from ESPRI, and through the operation of capital funds agreements, will own substantially all of its capital stock. Prior to the construction of any unit, each electric utility wishing to participate in its capacity will be required to enter into a long-term power contract and capital funds agreement.

Petitioners estimate that over $15 billion in capital funds will be required to complete the construction program of ESPRI through 1991. Permanent financing of this program is expected to consist of the sale of capital stock to the Sponsors and the sale debt securities.

Any party to this proceeding may, in lieu of a personal appearance, file a written statement relating to the proposals with the Secretary of the Commission at 44 Holland Avenue, Albany, New York 12208. Such a statement will receive the same consideration as an unsworn statement made at a hearing.

Your Astrograph

For Friday, Oct. 31, 1975
ARIES (March 21-April 19)
 There will be some minor domestic disturbances today, but don't let them interfere with plans you and your mate have for this evening.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
 You're a bit temperamental today. Little things at work will upset you more than usual. However, once you're back under your own roof calm will prevail.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
 If you think all your financial moves through carefully today the results will be profitable. Loss is likely if you're impulsive.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
 Be sure you're the one who has control over the family purse today. You'll get mileage from a dollar that others can't.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
 Later in the day you'll confront a frustrating situation. Though you'll be perturbed, you'll keep your feelings well disguised.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
 Financial conditions will be mixed today, but with a little prudent juggling you can remain in the black.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
 It's wisest to comply with what the majority wishes today instead of trying to get everyone else to rearrange their itinerary to suit yours.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
 You'll succeed in what you undertake today. You're prepared to exert the extra effort and suffer inconveniences others won't.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
 You won't be able to call the shots as you'd like today, but you will make the most of bad situations.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
 You'll have to make a decision today that will affect two friends. Tilt your answer toward the one who has proven most loyal in the past.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
 You're far more adept today working with your head than you are with your hands. Be careful if using tools.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
 Though it will be a trying day, attend to your responsibilities first, play later — not vice versa.

Your Birthday

Oct. 31, 1975

You'll have help from behind the scenes this coming year to enable you to achieve a difficult, but extremely worthwhile goal. This unexpected assistance will slant the odds your way.

Win At Bridge

He Carries Two-Edged Sword

By Oswald & James Jacobs

Sir Lancelot felt that with his trusty sword he could handle three ordinary knights. He also felt that with the trusty spades he would take his chances against the other three suits.

Lancelot's four spade bid was typical of his style at both bridge and war. His pass over five spades was a bit of guile. He felt that he wanted to play six, but knew that his reputation was such that if he bid it on his own he wouldn't be allowed to play there.

So he passed and let West push him into six. West passed over the six spades and poor East fell into the trap just as almost anyone would. He doubled.

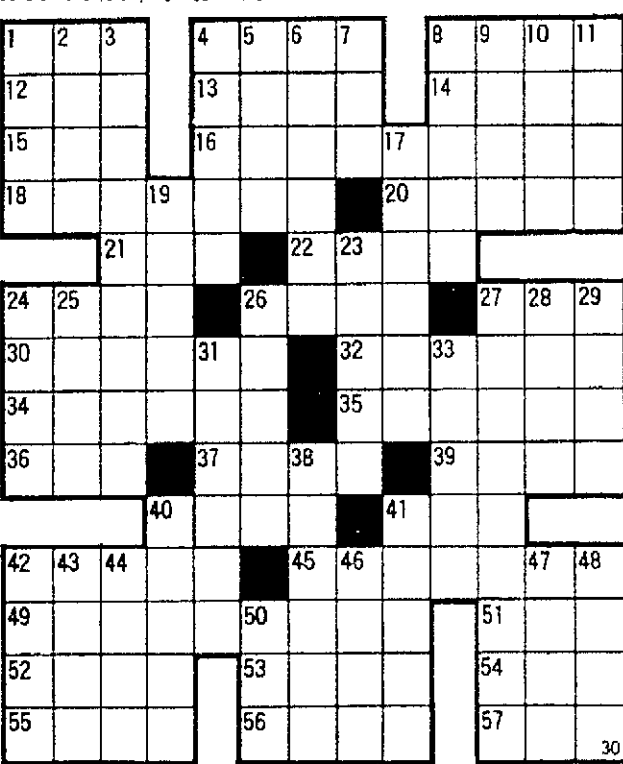

East's king of hearts won the first trick, but that was all for the defense. Diamonds didn't break, but Lancelot was able to pick up West's jack after East showed out on the second diamond lead.

East had a really cheap save at seven hearts, but there was no way for him to know that Lancelot had bid his six spades to make not as a sacrifice.

Quake Report Criticized

By Jon Powers

NEW PALTZ
Two geologists from the State University College at New Paltz have suggested that a professional consulting firm has seriously underestimated the potentiality for earthquake activity at the proposed Lloyd-Esopus nuclear site.

That assessment was included in a critique published recently by Dr. Stephen J. Egemeier and Dr. Russell Waines, both members of the Department of Geological Sciences at SUNY New Paltz. They maintain that as many as six geologic faults are present at the 2,300-acre Lloyd-Esopus site, each representing a potential hazard should nuclear reactors be situated in the area.

It is their contention that the consulting firm of Dames and Moore was aware of the presence of at least some of those faults as far back as 1971, but neglected to mention them in a special geological report prepared in 1973 for the Energy Research and Development Authority (ERDA).

The two geology professors maintain that the presence of earthquake faults should be a major consideration in the decision whether to develop the Lloyd-Esopus site for nuclear-powered generating facilities.

According to the two professors, Dames and Moore prepared a geologic report for potential plant sites between Albany and Newburgh in 1971, and commented specifically on two sites adjacent to the present Lloyd-Esopus site. In reference to one of those adjacent sites, according to Egemeier and Waines, the 1971 report states: "This formation is extensively faulted by repetitive high angle reverse faults which have a north-south trend."

Egemeier and Waines contend that the 1973 Dames and Moore report makes no mention of that supposedly extensive fault activity in areas adjacent to the present study site.

They also point out that the 1973 Dames and Moore study includes a map of the study site which labels two specific earth faults, but those fault areas are not shown on an accompanying geologic cross-section of the site or mentioned in the study text.

In their critique of the two Dames and Moore studies, the professors state: "Faults are cracks in the earth's crust along which movement has occurred in the past. Some may also be active in the future. Activity along faults usually results in earthquakes, some of which may be strong enough to damage or destroy man-made structures such as nuclear reactors... this contradiction in this report is very serious as the main reason for geologic studies of nuclear sites is to ascertain the earthquake safety of the site."

The faults discovered at the Lloyd-Esopus site, they say, "may have had only minor movement, but several show considerable shattering of the bedrock."

Flag for the Fire Department

Officials of Kingston American Legion Post 150 presented a '76 Bennington Flag to the Kingston Fire Department at ceremonies Wednesday at Deitz Stadium. Shown (L-R) are Mayor Francis R. Koenig, Post Commander Jack Spader, Fire Chief William Schreiber, past commander John Fautz, vice-commander Jerry Shafer and Fire Capt. Francis Argulewicz. The flag will be flown over the Central Fire Station. (Freeman photo)

Statements Surprise Mayor

KINGSTON
Mayor Francis R. Koenig takes strong exception to remarks by his Republican opponent, William K. Darling, picturing the mayor as a "strong arm" political animal.

Koenig, referring to Darling's Oct. 28 press release, said, "When first I heard that the candidate of the so-called 'Sunshine Politics' had referred to me as a 'Political animal', I could not believe it. I had always imagined that he was a gentleman, and would never stoop so low, merely to procure some votes. But after it was repeated and repeated on the radio, I was forced to the conclusion that Mr. Darling had, in desperation, ceased to be a gentleman in this campaign. His charge is false, childish, and vicious," Koenig said.

"If the 'Sunshine' candidate is half the man his ads pretend he is, and if he is entitled to even some of the love his supporters claim, then he will at once apologize for his crudely intemperate remarks. Frankly, and sadly, I do not think he will follow such a gentlemanly course of conduct."

"Rather, I now reluctantly feel that he will continue on with his wild unfounded charges, hoping to deceive the people, at least until after election. For example, he refers to the Koenig 'strong arm machine' and alleges that I am 'using the City of Kingston as a stepping stone for higher political office.' Well, suppose we look at the real facts, something the Sunshine alias Republican candidate refuses to do," Koenig said.

"In the City of Kingston there are, according to the official records as of October 24, 1975, more than 3,300 enrolled Republicans, as against slightly over 2,050 enrolled Democrats, and over 7,170 not-enrolled in any party and only 97 enrolled Conservatives and 86 enrolled Liberals. Since the total of Republicans (who outnumber Democrats 3 to 2) and those not enrolled, total about 10,475, as against about 2,050 Democrats, it is obvious that the Sunshine candidate's figures are all wet. His charge that a person who leads a group of 2,050 controls a total of about 12,500 people is ridiculous on its face," Koenig charges.

But truly vicious is that candidate's implied charge that I, as Mayor, in case of fire do, or even have the power to "restrict the response of necessary manpower." That charge is a vicious lie! No mayor gives any orders in the course of a fire. They come only from the fire chief and other authorized officers of the Fire Department.

"And his charge that 'It has been the consistent policy of the Koenig machine to give the barest of essentials to the volunteers' is another of his untruths. Actually, my administration has replaced the two 1951 Dodges (500 gallon pumps) operated by the Rapid and the Cordts Hose Volunteer companies and is in the process of replacing one 1947 White (500 gallon Pump) operated by the Wicks Volunteer Company. Rapid and Cordts Hose Volunteer Companies have been replaced with two 1974 Fords (each 750 gallon per minute pumps) and Wicks Volunteer Company will receive a 1974 Ford (also a 750 gallon per minute pump) at a total cost of $60,000. Every knowledgeable person concedes this has provided a remarkable improvement in the equipment of those volunteer companies, and has greatly added to their fire fighting abilities."
